Information Technology Governance

What is Information Technology Governance (ITG)? IT Governance is the framework by which IT investment decisions are made, communicated and overseen. What does that really mean; a true partnership between Information Technology and the Court Community Business Partners. IT Governance is successful when business processes and technology processes work together by utilizing a set of procedures developed to govern strategic outcomes. This is IT Governance.

The Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) is working with the Judicial Information System Committee (JISC) to deploy a governance method that promotes:

- Transparency – Requiring ongoing communication on proposed projects
- Open and Inclusive – Court Communities have a voice in choosing what is most important for their communities and for the state of Washington
- Business problems for the courts are reviewed holistically; how to benefit the many rather than the few
- One streamlined process for requests with consistent rules
