Additional grounds for Review

These two cops did not act in a way that their position as deputies and not as a higher ranking Sargent or other dictate. In a situation as this deputies are required to seek some assistance from a group of fellow deputies and a higher up, for the safety of the inmates and themselves. These men acted on their own, in a situation that required the guidence of a superior officer, as they would normally do in that county jail, and as they do in the state prison system. Where I am currently located it is policy to have atleast six correction workers suited up with riot gear, under the supervision of a superior prior to opening a room with a non-compliant offender, for the safety of the inmate and the people doing the job. The policy at the Pierce County Jail is similar I have witness it several times
