I, ARTURO SPENCER MARTIN, have received and review the opening brief prepared by my attorney. Summarized below are the additional ground(s) for review that are not address in that brief. I understand the Court will review this Statement of Additional Grounds for Review when my appeal is considered on the merits.

Summary of Additional Ground I

By and through the record, it is evidence that the Defendant did not enjoy “Conflict Free Counsel” with his trial counsel. The lower court failed and/or refused to review whether conflict existed upon the defendant’s open court statements. The conflict in question must be determined whether said conflict aggravated defendant’s assertion that he was prejudiced by Ineffective Assistance of Counsel.

Summary of Additional Ground II

The Defendant was extradited to Washington from Wyoming. In the defendant’s request for final disposition under the guidelines of the Interstate Agreement on Detainers, the Defendant fully complied with all provisions therein. The State and by and through the defendant’s “state appointed” defense counsel, violated the provisions of time limitations repeatedly by more than doubling the time in extensions against the open court objections of the defendant and defendant’s refusal to sign the waiver form for said time extensions.

Support for the grounds follow in the following pages.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Did the Superior Court violate the time limitations pursuant to the provisions in the Interstate Agreement on Detainers?
2. Under the two prong test, was each continuance Necessary and Reasonable?
3. Did the Court err in failing to determine whether defendant had “conflict-free” counsel and whether
4. Was Attorney for the Defense Ineffective in protecting the contested rights of the defendant?
5. Did Defendant assert his objections and desire not to waive his rights of speedy trial under the provisions of I.A.D. in open court?

STATEMENT OF FACTS

On February 24, Pierce County, Washington issued a Bench Warrant against Martin for Assault in the 2nd Degree. On February 24, 2012, a Bench Warrant was issued for the defendant, Arturo Martin and the State of Washington lodged a detainer with the Wyoming Department of Corrections for the charge of Assault in the Second Degree in violation of 9A.36.021(1)(a). Arturo Martin was serving a sentencing in Wyoming State Penitentiary for Domestic Violation and three to five years incarceration.

On January 6, 2014, Martin, while incarcerated in Wyoming, received notice of both the indictment from Pierce County and a resulting detainer lodged against him by the State of Washington. The State provided this notice to Martin in accordance with the requirements of the Interstate Agreement on Detainers ["IAD"], enacted into law by Washington Revised Code 9.100 and also Wyoming Revised Statutes § 7-15-101. Martin notified the appropriate Wyoming authorities with his request for final disposition of the pending Washington charges pursuant to IAD. On January 13, 2014, the prosecutor's office in Washington received the request pursuant to the Interstate Agreement on Detainers (I.A.D.) final disposition filed by Martin currently incarcerated in the Wyoming Medium Correctional Institution in Torrington, Wyoming. With the calculation of the (180) days to the time limit, the deadline is July 12, 2014 [Deadline] to reach final disposition pursuant to the provisions of IAD.

On February 14, 2014, Stephen Penner, Assistant Chief, Criminal Division, contacted Danielle Hedblum, Agreement Administrator DOC to begin the IAD process. Due to Washington's lack of communication and timely follow-up procedure, Washington delayed the request for temporary custody to the officials in Wyoming.

Washington authorities transferred Martin to Washington on May 6, 2014 after 113 days had elapsed leaving only sixty-seven (67) days until deadline.. The court held Martin's arraignment on May 7, 2014 and appointed counsel to represent Martin. The Superior Court also issued the following Scheduling Order: Pre-Trial Conference, May 27, 2014, Omnibus Hearing, June 12, 2014, and Jury Trial, June 30, 2014. Neither counsel nor Martin objected to the dates set at this time nor during the days remaining under the 180-day time limit contained in Article III(c) of the IAD.

Of noteworthy mention, the same state form counts the age of this case as 36 days. This inaccurate case age is calculated on the date Martin came into Washington's custody on May 6, 2014, however, relevant to this case is the accounting from February 13, 2014, when formal notice of the IAD request was received. Accurate calculation between February 13, 2014 and June 12, 2014, totals 150 days and (30) days remaining until deadline.

To evaluate a speedy-trial claim, a court must balance four factors: (1) the length of the delay, (2) the reason for the delay, (3) whether and how the defendant asserted his speedy-trial right, and (4) whether the defendant suffered prejudice as a result of the delay. Barker, 407 U.S. at 530-31; accord Doggett v. United States, 505 U.S. 647, 651, 112 S. Ct. 2686, 2690, 120 L. Ed. 2d 520 (1992). No single factor is controlling or necessary; rather, the factors "must be considered together with such other circumstances as may be relevant." Barker, 407 U.S. at 533.

On June 12, 2014, counsel for defense requested extension of time stating that he needed "Additional time needed to investigate and prepared. State just received certs on defendants priors." The defendant objected and refused to sign the consent form for the extension. By Defendant's objection to the continuance and refusal to sign the consent form, Defendant clearly demonstrated that he did not wish to waive the 180-day limitation. The Court granted an additional 80 days continuance and took note of defendant's open court objection and refusal to sign the consent form, and reset the trial date for September 18, 2014. This extension of time sets the new trial date 68 days past the deadline and in violation of IAD provisions. The Interstate Agreement on Detainers Act sets forth five distinct requirements for obtaining a continuance. First, the court must have competent jurisdiction. Second, the grant of the continuance must be in open court. Third, the defendant and/or his attorney must be present. Fourth, the movant must demonstrate good cause in open court, and finally, the length of the continuance must be reasonable or necessary. Compliance with the first requirement is a question of law, which the court reviews de novo. The second and third requirements present questions of fact, and the court will reverse the district court's findings thereon only if those findings are clearly erroneous. Conformance with the fourth and fifth requirements is a mixed question of law and fact which, again, the court reviews de novo.

The June 12, 2014, continuance granting an 80-day extension of time is nearly half the original time of the IAD deadline limit – 44.44% added on. The court must ask whether an additional 44% is necessary and reasonable. Defendant states that it is not with effective assistance of counsel. Once more, the trial court makes no attempt to keep it as close to the trial date deadline as possible as this first of many extensions brings the date to 68 days outside the IAD deadline. The court erred in its failure to uphold the "necessary and reasonable" elements.

It should further be noted that the author who completed the "Order Continuing Trial" form falsely and/or inaccurately stated, "This motion for continuance is brought by defendant upon agreement of the parties pursuant to CrR 3.3(f)(1) or..." Martin did not consent.

This new date exceeds the IAD Deadline by sixty-eight days and Defendant would have been in Washington Custody for 135 days without trial commencing within the required 120-day limit, an additional violation of IAD. Article IV(c) of Interstate Agreement on Detainers requires commencement of trial within 120 days of prisoner's arrival in receiving state whenever receiving state initiates disposition of charges underlying detainer it has previously lodged against prisoner, including, in case of federal government, initiation of proceedings by use of writ of habeas corpus ad prosequendum to secure custody of state prisoner against whom detainer was previously filed; federal indictment must be dismissed where after United States filed detainer with state prison authorities, after prisoner requested speedy trial on federal charge, and after prisoner was produced for arraignment before Federal District Court pursuant to writ of habeas corpus ad prosequendum issued by District Court, federal trial was postponed on several occasions, either at government's request or on court's own initiative, until approximately 17 months after prisoner's arraignment. United States v Mauro (1978) 436 US 340, 56 L Ed 2d 329, 98 S Ct 1834. In another case, "Article IV requires commencement of trial of prisoner against whom detainer has been lodged within 120 days of arrival of prisoner in receiving state and, in any event, before prisoner is returned to sending state; remedy for failure timely to bring prisoner to trial is that indictments, informations or complaints must be dismissed with prejudice. Commonwealth v Merlo (1976) 242 Pa Super 517, 364 A2d 391"

On September 3, 2014, defense counsel again made motion to the court for an extension of time stating, "Additional time needed to prepare & investigate, three strikes allegation, state & defense seeking certified copies of prior convictions." It should be noted that defense counsel on June 12, 2014, had already stated that the "state just received certs on defendants priors." The Court rescheduled the trial date to January 29, 2015, an additional one-hundred and thirty-three (133) day-extension which is 201 days beyond the 180-day deadline. Considering that the defense counsel states he and the state are waiting for certified copies which he had previously admitted the state had already received, the continuance is not only unnecessary but is absolutely unreasonable in its length of 133 days when originally the Court had 180 days to reach final disposition.

Defense counsel also states that he needed time to research three-strikes allegation which the state flip-flopped whether they had grounds to pursue the habitual act or not. In the end, they violated the Defendant's IAD speedy-trial rights to buy time for additional charges of three-strikes allegation which ultimately they did not accomplish. It is also the prosecution's decision to add charges over those stated in the detainer, something they should have prepared for prior to extraditing the Defendant. The state prosecutor's office was not diligent in its preparation when it filed the detainer, nor was it efficient with its follow up which delayed the extradition to begin with. These are not errors by the Defendant.

On the day trial, January 29, 2015, the Court, with the Honorable Jerry T. Costello presiding, heard the Defendant's Motion to Proceed Pro Se. After thoroughly questioning Defendant, the Court granted Martin Pro Se Status while at the same time, and once more against Martin's objections, Grants defense counsel's motion for an extension of time with the cause shown as: "Additional time needed to prepare, defense interview with alleged victim scheduled for 2/2/2015 in Burlington, WA." Trial date despite objection by defendant is reset for February 19, 2015, 402 days since notification, and (222) days over violation. To Defendant's knowledge, this interview never took place prior to trial.

On this continuance, the State's form calculates the case age at 923 days (2.53 years old). This inaccurate case age is calculated on the date the Court issued a BENCH WARRANT on February 24, 2012; however, relevant to this case is the accounting from February 13, 2014, when formal notice of the IAD request was received. Through all facets, the state and its agencies have demonstrated inconsistencies and lack of effectiveness.

Defendant, as in all times previous, refused to sign the consent form to waive his Constitutional Rights, and with the Court's full knowledge of such. The Court granted defense counsel's request, granting twenty-one (21) additional days while resetting the trial date to February 19, 2015, 222 days over the 180-day deadline.

On February 12, 2015, Defendant submitted to trial court a hand-written Motion to Dismiss based on violations of the interstate agreement on detainers. In this, he stated:

<<page 1 of 1>>There are several steps in the process to trigger a defendant rights under the interstate agreement on detainers (IAD). First the receiving state lodges a detainer against the defendant in the foreign sending state. Wash. Rev. Code § 9-100-010. Art. III(a) of the IAD. The penal officials in the sending state must inform the defendant of the detainer against him and inform him of his rights to request final disposition of those charges I the receiving state under the IAD Wash. Rev. Code § 9-100-010 (Art III(c) of IAD. Finally, upon notice of the detainer, the defendant himself must invoke his IAD rights by causing the appropriate request to be delivered to the court, and prosecutor of the county where the receiving state charges are pending. Wash. Rev. Code § 9-100-010 (Art. III(b) of IAD. From the time the prosecutor receives that request, the prosecutor office then has 180 days to bring the defendant to trial in the receiving state. Rights under 3.3(b) State vs. Welker 157 Wn.2d 557 Aug 17, 2006. A prosecutor has a duty of good faith and due diligence to utilize the interstate agreement on detainers when he knows in whose custody an incarcerated defendant is held.

<<page 1 of 2>> State vs. Anderson. The interstate agreement on detainers (RCW 9.100) should be utilized for filing detainers so that the defendant may avail themselves of demand for speedy trial: failure of the state to do this results in inapplicability of the exclusion from computation of the speedy trial period under subdivision former (g)(6) and possible dismissal with prejudice under former (1) State vs. Anderson 121 Wn.2d 852, 855 P.2d 671 (1993).

The Interstate Agreement on Detainers (IAD) establishes a statutory scheme where by IAD signatories: including Washington and Oregon, are required to resolve within 180 days outstanding charges against out-of-state prisoners and detainers base on untried indictments, information, or complaints. Wash. Rev. Code 9.100.010. Not only does the Anderson decision require prosecutors to exercise good faith and clued diligence in utilizing the IAD, its also repeatedly indicates that a prosecutors mere knowledge of an incarcerated defendant whereabouts prompts the good faith and due diligence duty to file a detainer. Anderson stands for the proposition that a defendant need not request disposition under the IAD in order to trigger a prosecutor's implied duty of good faith and due diligence. Instead, the prosecutor duty is triggered when he has actual knowledge of an incarcerated defendant's whereabouts in a foreign penal institution.

<<page 1 of 3>>Not withstanding CrR3.3(e)(6), which excludes form a time-for-trial calculation under CrR 3.3. Time defendant spent incarcerated in another state or in the federal system. The state violation of the interstate agreement on detainers (chapter) 9.100 RCW) may mean that the period of time the defendant was incarcerated in the foreign jurisdiction is included in the time calculation, which may result in a violation of the defendant's speedy trial rights under CrR 3.3(b). Armstrong v. Monzo, 380 U.S. 545, 552, 14 L.Ed.2d 62, 85 S.Ct. 1187 State's due process requires as general matter opportunity to be heard at a meaningful time and in a meaningful manner. Citizens must be afforded due process before deprivation of life, liberty, or property.

<<page 1 of 4>>Your honor. The interstate agreement on detainers speedy trial rights violation has been violated, because the prosecutor did not exercise good faith and due diligence on utilizing the IAD in the guidelines of the law, in order for me to have a fair trial within the 180 days time limit. Your honor, I ask for mercy on the Court in all fairness that all charges on Case No: 12-1-00649-2 The assault in the Second degree, Harassment DV, and Interfering with the reporting of domestic violence e dismissed with prejudice under the Interstate Agreement on Detainer's Speedy Rights violation under CrR 3.3 State vs. Anderson 121 Wn.2d 852, 855 P.2d. 671 (1993) and Washington Rev. Code. 9-100-010 (Art III(a) of IAD and (b)(c) and CrR 3.3(e)(6) and see: Armstrong vs. Monzo, 380 U.S. 545, 552, 14 L.Ed.2d 62, 85 S.Ct. 1187 and State vs. Welker, 157 Wn.2d 557 Aug 17, 2006 and U.S. vs. Marvro, 436 U.S. 340, 56 L.Ed.2d 329, 98 S.Ct. 1934 and the 6th Amendment"

In this instrument, the Defendant has demonstrated the violation of time limits based on recent case law wherein the Court and Prosecutor's office were both informed in writing pursuant to the provisions of IAD through Wyoming Officials. This above motion to dismiss was held without being heard by the court.

February 12, 2015, Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Susan Kavanaugh requested a Motion for Extension of Time before the Honorable Judge _____, since Judge Costello was unavailable. Kavanaugh requested an extension of time with the cause shown as: "State has filed a mtn for the court to supplement the record regarding the defendant's pro se status. Judge Costello was the Judge & left on vac until 2/20/2015." In open court, before Judge _____ Kavanaugh stated that Defendant had not been granted pro se status by Judge Costello when in fact he had. See: Verbatim Transcript of Proceedings, January 29, 2015, pg. 17, n 1-2 and nn 20-22. The trial date was reset to February 26, 2015, 229 days beyond deadline. In open court, Kavanaugh stated that the Defendant had not been granted pro se status when clearly that was untrue. This Defendant is without paperwork to determine the request dates of the following extensions of time granted to the prosecuting attorney. Two extensions were granted, placing the trial date 42 days later on April 9, 2015, a full 271 days beyond the IAD deadline. One last extension was granted for 13 days to April 22, 2015, 284 days beyond the deadline. Defendant was sentenced on June 26, 2015.

In light of Martin's verbal objections in open court and refusal to sign consent for any continuance, Martin has well established his desire to preserves his rights under IAD's time limitation provisions.

The United States Supreme Court determined "that the speedy trial rights in the IAD can be waived. Since it is fundamental that litigants can neither stipulate to, nor waive jurisdiction, this holding by the Supreme Court eliminates any jurisdictional prong in the IAD." Caniff v. Moore, 269 F.3d 1245, 1247 (11th 2001) (citing New York v. Hill, 528 U.S. 110, 120 S. Ct. 659, 145 L. Ed. 2d 560 (2000)). Claims arising under the Interstate Agreement on Detainers are therefore subject to preclusion from federal review by the doctrine of procedural default. Caniff, supra; Toole v. McDonough, 379 Fed.Appx. 883, 886 (11th Cir. 2010) (holding this court correctly determined Defendant's habeas challenge to the State's violation of the Interstate Agreement on Detainers Act by not trying him within the 180-day applicable deadline was procedurally defaulted). It is undisputed Reese did not raise his claims in the trial court prior to expiration of the time limits contained in the Interstate Agreement on Detainers Act. Under applicable state law, this failure constituted a waiver of these claims. Craig, 893 So.2d at 1254 ("Because [the defendant] had the opportunity to do so but chose not to object to the trial date at the time it was set or during the remaining days under the 180-day time limit, that is, because he failed to timely object to the ... court's setting the case for trial ... beyond the 180-day period mandated by the UMDDA, he has waived this issue."); Glover, 599 So.2d at 81-82 (Court set trial date outside the 180-day time limit but defendant/appellant did not object to the date at this time nor during the days remaining under the 180-day time limit. "Because appellant failed to timely object to the trial court's ordering ... continuances and setting the case for trial beyond the 180-day period, ... the appellant has waived this issue."). The Alabama Court of Criminal Appeals relied on this waiver as a basis for its decision affirming Reese's convictions on direct appeal. The IAD challenge pending before this court is therefore precluded from federal review due to Reese's procedural default.

In this case at bar, it is clear that Defendant Martin did in fact object to any extension of time and refused each time to sign the consent for, therefore Defendant is not precluded from federal review due to procedural default.

Holding these same "distinct requirements" the next continuance is granted for 133 days. The two combined continuances has become more than double the allotted time to reach final disposition. Not only is it not "reasonable", defense counsel claims to he is awaiting certified copies of the Defendant's previous convictions when he clearly stated in the first cause shown for the continuance that the "state just received certs on defendants priors." A continuance is clearly unnecessary since he seeks what he had already stated the state has received. Again, the Defendant asserted his rights by objection and refused to sign the consent form for continuance. Defendant's refusal is part of the record in open court and the Court being fully advised, failed to consider Defendant's rights.

The Court also failed to review the client/defendant relationship and determine whether the Defendant had conflict-free counsel. It is clear in the transcripts that substantial conflict did exist, as is later demonstrated when Defendant feels he is forced to represent himself pro se.

Constant and deliberate delay by defense counsel and counsel for the state, having filed under habitual criminal act only after Martin's first refusal to sign a waiver for continuance has prejudiced the defendant. The excessive delays and open perjury by defendant and state counsel is additional prejudice as well as a matter of ineffective assistance of counsel which demands review de novo. Both counsel showed indifference to Martin's demand to protect his rights and abused their authority and discretion by delaying jury trial for 349+ days beyond the 180 day limit.

The United States Supreme Court has summarized the relevant provisions of the Alabama statute codifying the agreement on detainers as follows:

On February 12, 2015, Martin, pro se, filed a motion to dismiss the indictment for the State's failure to bring him to trial "within the 180 days of his demand" for final disposition of the pending charges as required by the provisions of the Interstate Agreement on Detainer's Act. The State submitted its Response on February 19, 2015. Defendant's Motion to Dismiss is dismissed by the court.

On February 8, 2015, Martin handwrites motion to dismiss information based on repeated violations of the Interstate Agreement on Detainers provisions and it is filed on February 12, 2015, now 391 days since January 13, 2014. On this same day, the state makes submits a fourth motion for continuance while now tolling the case age at 281 days. The court orders a new trial date of February 26, 2015, 409 days since notification and , (229) days over violation.) Possibly February 26, 2015, Sentencing date set for June 5, 2015, State form change formula again. (Sentencing set for June 5, 2015, 508 days since notification, 328 days over violation. Sentencing continued to 6/26/2015, 529 days since notification and (349) days over violation, nearly twice over the original limit.

... Article III gives a prisoner against whom a detainer has been lodged the right to "request" a "final disposition" of the relevant charges, in which case "he shall be brought to trial within one hundred and eighty days" (unless extended by the trial court for "good cause"); otherwise, the relevant "indictment, information, or complaint shall not be of any further force or effect, and the court shall enter an order dismissing the same with prejudice." Art. III(a), (d).... [I]t is important to keep in mind that the [Interstate Agreement on Detainers] basically (1) gives a prisoner the right to demand a trial within 180 days; and (2) gives a State the right to obtain a prisoner for purposes of trial, in which case the State (a) must try the prisoner within 120 days of his arrival [in the State]....Alabama v. Bozeman, 533 U.S. 146, 150-151, 121 S. Ct. 2079, 2083, 150 L. Ed. 2d 188 (2001). However, the rights established by the Act are not fundamental or jurisdictional and may be explicitly or implicitly waived. New York v. Hill, 528 U.S. 110, 114-118, 120 S. Ct. 659, 663-666, 145 L. Ed. 2d 560 (2000). Both counsel and the defendant possess the ability to effect a waiver of these rights. Id.

Lastly, the defendant questions Appellate Counsel's statement within the submitted brief crediting the State Court with only half the blame for the continued and unnecessary delays and continuances, and who is assigned the remainder of the second half.

CONCLUSION

The Defendant contends that the state violated his Constitutional rights while acting under color of law as agents of the government,

Defendant was entitled to final disposition within 180 days and failure to conclude all aspects of trial within that time limit must result in Dismissal with Prejudice.

Re: State v. Arturo Martin; Pierce County Superior Court Cause 12-1-00649-2

Mr. Martin:

I am a defense attorney with the Pierce County Department of Assigned Counsel. You recently contacted the Pierce County Superior Court Clerk, and that correspondence was forwarded to my office.

You have been charged in Pierce County Superior Court with Assault in the Second Degree, Interfering with Reporting of Domestic Violence, and Harassment, all charges being domestic violence related. The charges are still open and it looks like you have not been arraigned on them yet. The warrant was originally issued on February 23, 2012. The warrant will remain open until you return to Tacoma and face these charges.

Because my office has not yet been appointed to your case, we do not represent you on this matter. And because your case is still an open charge – there is little I can do for you directly. That means you will either have to hire a local attorney to assist you with your case or you will have to proceed pro se (which means without an attorney).

However, I have enclosed some information that I hope will be helpful to you. I have enclosed the text of the Revised Code of Washington (RCW) 9.100. This is the statute and law you will need to follow in order to properly preserve your right to a speedy trial.

All filings need to be sent to both the Superior Court Clerk and the prosecutor's office.

Sven, Heather, and I staffed this case this morning and the decision we reached is that the pretrial offer with a concurrent sentence is not appropriate and we are intending to proceed to trial with Mr. Martin as a 3rd striker. If your client is willing to discuss an offer that would result in prison time in the 15 year range, then we may be able to negotiate further.

I will be on vacation as of close of business today returning on January 5, 2014. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact Heather.

As you know, Mr. Martin is serving a Wyoming sentence of "3 to 5 years" with credit of 283 days as of sentencing on Oct 18, 2013. According to him his earliest release date is July, 2016, latest is July, 2017, which sounds about right. The offer is contingent upon the sentence being served concurrent with Wyoming which may present logistical problems. Call me when you get a chance, Mark

YOUR HONOR. I am writing you or should I say praying to you for help. your honor. I signed The Interstate Agreement on Detainees on this day of 9 January 2014 I arrived here at Pierce County Washington on this day of 6 March, 2014. Today is 8 Feb. 2015. thats 210 days Post my 180 day speedy trial Rights, which equals to 395 days when I signed The Interstate Agreement on Detainees.

A signed contract is bound by law, Its the law of the land.

Your honor. There are several steps in the process to trigger a defendant rights under the Interstate Agreement on Detainers (IAD). First the receiving state lodges a detainer against the defendant in the foreign sending state. Wash. Rev. Code § 9.100.010. (art. III(a) of IAD) The penal officials in the sending state must inform the defendant of the detainer against him and inform him of his rights to request final disposition of those charges in the receiving state under the (IAD)- Wash. Rev. Code § 9.100.010. (art. III(c) of IAD) Finally, upon notice of the detainer, the defendant himself must invoke his (IAD) rights by causing the appropriate request to be delivered to the court, and prosecutor of the county where the receiving state charges are pending. Wash. Rev. Code § 9.100.010. (art. III(b) of IAD) From the time the prosecutor receives that request, the prosecutor office then has 180 days to bring the defendant to trial in the receiving state. Rights under 3.3(b) STATE VS. WELKER 157 Wn.2d 557 Aug 17, 2006. A prosecutor has a duty of good faith and due diligence to utilize the Interstate Agreement on Detainers when he knows in whose custody an incarcerated defendant is held.

STATE V. Anderson

The Interstate Agreement on Detainers (RCW 9.100) should be utilized for filing detainers so that the defendant may avail themselves of demand for speedy trial. Failure of the State to do this, results in inapplicability of the exclusion from computation of the speedy trial period under subdivision former (g) (c) and possible dismissal with prejudice under former (l) State v. Anderson 121 Wn.2d 852, 855 P.2d 671 (1993)

The Interstate Agreement on Detainers (IAD) establishes a statutory scheme where by (IAD) signatories: including Washington and Oregon, are required to resolve within 180 days outstanding charges against out-of-state prisoners and detainers based on untried indictments, information, or complaints. Wash. Rev. Code § 9.100.010. Not only does the Anderson decision require prosecutors to exercise good faith and due diligence in utilizing the (IAD), it also repeatedly indicates that a prosecutor's mere knowledge of an incarcerated defendant whereabouts prompts the good faith and due diligence duty to file a detainer. Anderson stands for the proposition that a defendant need not request disposition under the (IAD) in order to trigger a prosecutor's implied duty of good faith and due diligence. Instead, the prosecutor duty is triggered when he has actual knowledge of an incarcerated defendant's whereabouts in a foreign penal institution.

Not withstanding CrR 3.3 (c)(6), which excludes from a time-for-trial calculation under CrR 3.3 Time a defendant spent incarcerated in another state or in the federal system. The state violation of the Interstate Agreement on Detainers (chapter) 9.100 RCW) may mean that the period of time the defendant was incarcerated in the foreign jurisdiction is included in the time calculation, which may result in a violation of the defendant's speedy trial rights under CrR 3.3(b)

ARMSTRONG VS. MONROE, 380 U.S. 545, 552, 14

Due process requires as general matter opportunity to be heard at a meaningful time and in a meaningful manner.

 Your honor. The Interstate Agreement on Detainer's speedy trial right's violation has been violated, because the prosecutor did not exercise good faith and due diligence in utilizing the (IAD) in the Guidelines of the law, in order for me to have a fair trial within the 180 days Time limits. Your honor. I ask for mercy on the Court in all fairness, that all charges on Case No: 12-1-00649-2 The assault in the second degree, Harassment DV, and Interfering with the reporting of domestic violence be dismissed with prejudice. Under The Interstate Agreement on Detainer's Speedy Right's Violation. under CrR3.3 STATE VS. Anderson 121 WR. 2d 852, 855 P. 2d 671 (1993.) and Washington Rev. Code, 9.100.010. (art. MARVRO 436 U.S. 340, 56 Led. 2d 329 98. Sct 1934 and The "6 Amendment" Your honor. This motion holds enough merits for it to be granted. I ask for mercy on the Court, with the up most respect.

SUPERIOR COURT OF WASHINGTON FOR PIERCE COUNTY

STATE OF WASHINGTON,

Plaintiff,

CAUSE NO. 12-1-00649-2

vs.

ARTURO SPENCER MARTIN,

STATE'S RESPONSE TO DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO DISMISS
BASED ON VIOLATION OF THE INTERSTATE AGREEMENT ON
DETAINERS AND SPEEDY TRIAL

Defendant.

COMES NOW the Plaintiff, State of Washington, by and through Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Susan Kavanaugh, and respectfully asks the Court to deny the defendant's motion to dismiss. The State relies on the authorities and argument below.

I. FACTS

On February 23, 2012, the State filed an information charging the defendant with Assault in the Second Degree – DV (with an aggravator), Felony Harassment – DV, and Interfering with the Reporting of Domestic Violence – DV based on an incident alleged to have occurred on December 12, 2011. A warrant was issued in conjunction with the filing of the charges. On January 13, 2014, the Pierce County Prosecutor's Office received the defendant's request for a final disposition dated January 9, 2014. The State then started our Interstate Agreement on Detainers (IAD) process on February 3, 2014, which included creating necessary and required forms, having them approved and signed by transport

1 officers and a Judge, and then forwarding those forms onto the Agreement Administrator
2 with the Washington State Department of Corrections. The documents were completed by 3 the Pierce County Prosecutor's Office and sent out on February 14, 2014. The Department
4 of Corrections and the Governor's Office then needed to complete their part of the IAD
5 process and forward the paperwork to the appropriate officials in the State of Wyoming. In 6 early May, the Pierce County Prosecutor's Office followed up with our Governor's office
7 regarding Mr. Martin's IAD request and found that the forms had not been sent to 8 Wyoming as of that date. They were then sent on May 5, 2014. Pierce County Sherriff's
9 Deputies then travelled to Wyoming and transported the defendant here. He was booked 10 into the Pierce County Jail on May 6, 2014 and was arraigned on May 7, 2014. At 11 arraignment, the trial date was set for June 30, 2014. The Department of Assigned
12 Counsel was appointed to represent the defendant and Mark Quigley became the attorney 13 of record.

14 On June 12, 2014, the trial date of June 30, 2014 was continued to September 18, 15 2014. The defendant refused to sign the continuance; however, the continuance was 16 requested by defense counsel in order to investigate and prepare the case. The State agreed 17 and also noted that we had just received certified copies of the defendant's priors. The 18 Honorable Judge Cuthbertson continued the case. The State filed a Persistent Offender
19 Notice (Third Conviction) on August 5, 2014.

20
21 On September 2, 2014, the trial date of September 18, 2014 was continued to 22 January 29, 2015. The defendant again refused to sign the order continuing trial; however,
23 defense counsel requested the continuance, which the State agreed to, as he needed 24 additional time to prepare and investigate the three strikes allegation. It was also noted that 25

1 the State and defense were seeking certified copies of prior convictions. The Honorable
2 Judge Cuthbertson granted the continuance.

3 On January 13, 2015, the defendant filed a motion to proceed pro se. On January
4 29, 2015, the day of trial, the defendant's motion was heard and granted by the Honorable 5 Judge Costello. Trial was set for February 19, 2015 over the defendant's objection, as the 6 victim's interview had been set for February 2, 2015. On February 4, 2015, the State noted
7 a motion to continue trial date for February 12, 2015. On that date, the State filed a
8 Motion to Supplement Record of Defendant's Right to Pro Se Representation and asked 9 that the motion be set before the Honorable Judge Costello on the first day after he 10 returned from recess and that the trial date be briefly set over. The Honorable Judge
11 Tollefson granted the State's motion to continue over the defendant's objection and set a 12 motion for February 20, 2015 with a new trial date of February 26, 2015. The defendant 13 stated that he had motions that he also wanted heard by the court that he had mailed to the 14 clerk and the State, but neither had received any. The State made copies of defendant's 15 motions and the originals were filed. Judge Tollefson instructed the State to be ready to 16 address the defendant's motions on February 20, 2014.

17 II. LAW AND ARGUMENT

18 Under the IAD, when Washington has charges pending against a prisoner
19 incarcerated in another jurisdiction, it may ask that jurisdiction not to release the prisoner 20 before his Washington charges are resolved. RCW 9.100.010, Art. III(a). After 21 Washington files its detainer, the prisoner may demand that Washington bring him to trial 22 within 180 days. RCW 9.100.010, Art. III(a). This period begins to run when the 23 prisoner's demand has actually been delivered to the court and the prosecuting attorney
24

1 who filed the detainer. Fex v. Michigan, 507 U.S. 43, 52, 113 S.Ct. 1085, 122 L.Ed.2d 406

2 (1993). While the IAD does state that the defendant shall be brought to trial within 180

3 days after the demand has been filed, it also allows for reasonable and necessary

4 continuances:

5 "Whenever a person has entered upon a term of imprisonment in a penal or 6 correctional institution of a party state, and whenever during the 7 continuance of the term of imprisonment there is pending in any other party 8 state any untried indictment, information or complaint on the basis of which 9 a detainer has been lodged against the prisoner, he shall be brought to trial
10 within one hundred eighty days after he shall have caused to be delivered to 11 the prosecuting officer and the appropriate court of the prosecuting officer's
12 jurisdiction written notice of the place of his imprisonment and his request
13 for a final disposition to be made of the indictment, information or Jan 12
14 complaint: PROVIDED, That for good cause shown in open court, the 15 prisoner or his counsel being present, the court having jurisdiction of the 16 matter may grant any necessary or reasonable continuance." RCW
17 9.100.010, Art. III(a).

18 Further, Article IV(c) states, "[i]n respect of any proceeding made possible by this 19 Article, trial shall be commenced within one hundred twenty days of the arrival of the 20 prisoner in the receiving state, but for good cause shown in open court, the prisoner or his 21 counsel being present, the court having jurisdiction of the matter may grant any necessary
22 or reasonable continuance." RCW 9.100.010.

23 In this case, the defendant ~~was brought to Washington and trial was set to~~ resolved
24 commence prior to the 180 days required by IAD. The defendant was arraigned 114 days 25 after the prosecutor's office received his request. 180 days from the date that we received the demand was July 12, 2014. At arraignment, the court set the trial for June 30, 2014, which was before the 180 day time limit was set to expire. Trial continuances were then requested by defense counsel, with the agreement of the State, based on the serious nature of the charges. The Court granted the continuances over the defendant's objections, as the

1 reasons for the continuances from defense counsel were necessary and reasonable based on
2 the nature of the case in order for counsel to be adequately prepared for trial. The State
3 exercised due diligence and good faith in bringing the defendant to Washington with 4 enough time to set a trial date before the 180 day time limit. The motions for continuance 5 of trial were initiated by defense counsel and were reasonable and necessary based on the 6 circumstances.

7 Even violation of the IAD's 180 day time limit does not required automatic
8 dismissal of the charges. State v. Angelone, 67 Wn.App. 555, 561, 837 P.2d 656 (1992).
9 Instead in each case the court considers the prosecutor's bad faith, if any, and the prejudice
10 to the defendant. Id. In this case, the Pierce County Prosecutor's Office did not act in bad
11 faith. The defendant's written demand was acted on in a timely manner and the necessary
12 paperwork from the prosecutor's office was sent shortly thereafter. The prosecutor's office
13 also took the initiative to follow up with the Governor's office to check on the defendant's 14 IAD paperwork. The defendant was transported from Wyoming and a trial date was set 15 before the 180 days expired.

17 The defendant further argues that based on the Washington Criminal Rules and 18 State v. Anderson, 121 Wn.2d 852, 855 P.2d 671 (1993) that the State has not exercised 19 good faith and due diligence in utilizing the IAD, and therefore, has violated the 20 defendant's time for trial rights. Anderson is no longer good law as it was superseded by 21 rule, as stated in State v. George, 160 Wn.2d 727, 158 P. 3d 1169 (2007). Nevertheless, 22 the facts of that case are clearly distinguishable from the defendant's case as the State in 23 Anderson had not filed a detainer in order for the defendant to utilize the IAD process. In 24 that case, the court was focused on whether the State had acted in good faith and with due diligence when the State had made no effort to obtain the defendant's presence for trial.

Anderson at 865.

Under the most current version of CrR 3.3, which took effect on September 1, 2003, the 60 or 90 day speedy trial period initially commences on the arraignment date. Speedy trial in this case did not commence until the initial commencement date, i.e., the arraignment on May 7, 2014. Since then continuances have been granted, over the defendant's objection, but based on motion of defense counsel, and after being heard by the court, on the record. The defendant's speedy trial rights have not been violated.

III. CONCLUSION

The State respectfully requests the Court deny the defendant's motion to dismiss.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED this 19th day of February, 2015.
