Good afternoon,

I am working remotely, and I am having issues with logging on to e-file. Our legal messengers are unable to file a hard copy.

Can the documents be emailed or fax filed?

Please be advised that our law firm is under a mandatory work from home order due to COVID-19. As a consequence, we are asking all counsel to send all correspondence, pleading, discovery or other communications electronically, until further notice. As a result of the work from home order, we are also not receiving legal messenger service. Please help us avoid delays by sending all communications by email to the attorney of record on your file and to ESERVICEPAL@LIBERTYMUTUAL.COM. If your documents are too large to send via email, please contact the attorney of record on your file to make arrangements to have the documents uploaded to us via ShareFile. We are also asking that all appearances, including depositions, mediations or arbitrations, be done virtually, to the extent possible as agreed to by the parties. Please include information about your office's ability to participate virtually when we are coordinating such scheduling.

Kind Regards,

Nina Cordova
