DANIEL SNAPP,)	(RAP 10.8)
Petitioner.)

Pursuant to RAP 10.8, petitioner Daniel Snapp submits the following statement of additional authorities for the consideration of the Court in the above-captioned matter: State v. Williams, No. 83992-1 (Filed May 12, 2011):

The Fourth Amendment forbids only "unreasonable" searches and seizures, thus implicitly recognizing the government's power to conduct "reasonable" searches. Adopted a century after the federal constitution, the Washington Constitution embodies a significantly different approach to limiting the government's power to search. Article I, section 7 is brief and to the point: "No person shall be disturbed in his private affairs, or his home invaded, without authority of law." The words "reasonable" and "unreasonable" do not appear in article I, section 7. Thus even reasonable searches may contravene article I, section 7 if they are without the authority of law.

Slip Op. at 12-13 (internal citations omitted).

Respectfully submitted this 12th day of May, 2011.
