I. INTRODUCTION

Amicus "National Police Association"<sup>1</sup> ("NPA") argues discretionary review should be granted because the courts below should have refused to enforce this Court's precedent and its progeny which decades ago settled "discretionary immunity" and the "professional rescuer doctrine" are defenses to negligence claims. See NPA Br. 3. This position is factually and legally unsupported, directly contrary to the appellate rules, decades of well-reasoned Supreme Court and Court of Appeals precedent, public policy and stare decisis.

II. NPA'S MISCHARACTERIZATIONS AND OMISSIONS

NPA's "Statement of Case" mischaracterizes the case. It begins by citing its own improper trial court declaration while omitting it was disallowed by the Superior Court in the CR 12(c) motion to dismiss on the pleadings. Compare NPA Br. 2

(citing CP 66, 71-72, 76-84) with CP 177 (denying leave to appear as amicus).<sup>2</sup> NPA misleadingly describes the supposed conditions of Deputy McCartney's patrol area (District No. 10) -- despite it being different from, and differently staffed than, the location where the events at issue actually occurred (District No. 7). Compare NPA Br. 2 with CP 4; Answer to Pet. 3; Estate of McCartney by & through McCartney v. Pierce Cnty., 513 P.3d 119, 124-125 (2022).

NPA claims the case involves the Sheriff failing "to provide proper training and support that could have prevented the tragedys [sic]," NPA Br. 3, but the Court of Appeal's recognition of the pleadings and documents judicially noticed establish McCartney was properly trained but he did not follow that training. See 513 P.3d at 132 n. 9; Ans. to Pet. 5 n. 2. See

<sup>2</sup> NPA's declaration of Joel Schultz is singularly unhelpful in reviewing an order on the pleadings since it simply concerns his irrelevant opinions based on a "review of two articles concerning the effects of ... staffing decisions" and "their application" by him "to the facts alleged." CP 65, 74-75.

also McIver v. City of Spokane, 182 Wn.App. 1034, *5 (2014)(there is “no authority” a municipal employee “is permitted to bring a negligent supervision claim against her employer for her own personal injury.”)

As shown below, when NPA then provides its legal analysis, it likewise misstates the law.

III. ANALYSIS

A. NPA ALONE CITES RAP 13.4(b)(4) AND CLAIMS IT IS MET

Unlike Plaintiffs’ Petition, see Pet. iii-iv, NPA cites RAP 13.4(b)(4) -- but does so only as to “discretionary immunity.” See NPA Br. 6. Every sentence on that page thereafter NPA repeats its assertion that review to overturn discretionary immunity precedent somehow is required to sustain social “order” and avoid “disorder.” See NPA Br. I, 1, 4, 6-8, 10, 12, 14. It nowhere identifies how the 911 call involved “social disorder”– much less how “discretionary immunity” caused it. NPA asserts an authoritarian ipse dixit that “Maintaining Public Order Is a Supra Constitutional Imperative” so this Court should “relax traditional rules of law” to prevent some amorphous public “disorder.” Id. at 4, 7-8.

The Petition itself neither mentions RAP 13.4(b)(4) nor argues it as required by RAP 13.4(c)(7). See Pet. iii-iv; Ans. to Pet. 9-11; Matter of Mines, 186 Wn.2d 1001, 395 P.3d 997 (2016)(discretionary review denied because Petitioner “does not make this showing” required by RAP 13.4(b) but “argues only that the Court of Appeals erred”). NPA cannot supply what is missing from that Petition. See e.g. State v. Xiong, 164 Wn.2d 506, 191 P.3d 1278 (2008) (“Amicus cannot raise an issue not properly raised by a party to the case”); Madison v. State, 161 Wn.2d 85, 163 P.3d 757 (2007) (“[t]his court does not consider issues raised first and only by amici”).

NPA’s argument tries to link “discretionary immunity” and the “professional rescuer doctrine” to “social disorder” – simply through repetition of an appeal to fear. This does not meet the RAP 13.4(b)(4) burden of showing the decision below regarding discretionary immunity is “an issue of substantial public interest.” That rule requires a showing such as the “decision ... has the potential to affect a number of proceedings in the lower courts” and that “review will avoid unnecessary litigation and confusion on a common issue.” See e.g. In re Flippo, 185 Wn.2d 1032, 380 P.3d 413, 414 (2016) (citing State v. Watson, 155 Wn.2d 574, 577, 122 P.3d 903 (2005)). Neither the Petition, nor NPA, make such a showing.

This Court has rejected a suit contesting a county’s legislative decision that actually reduced the number of sheriff’s deputies – rather than, as here, merely did not increase them to the extent a plaintiff wished.<sup>3</sup> Even when this Court recognized a County legislature’s reduction of sheriff’s staff “was improvident and ill considered” and “the sheriff’s office will be hampered by the reduction in force,” it held in Farmer

v. Austin, 186 Wn.577, 583, 59 P.2d 379 (1936) the “remedy lies with the electors rather than in the courts” because “the harm will not be nearly as great as would be the consequences of the interference by the courts with the executive duties of the board of county commissioners, in whom is reposed the financial management of the county's affairs.”

NPA neither complies with the appellate rules nor provides a basis for holding “traditional doctrines limiting judicial intervention” in immune discretionary decisions should be “relaxed.” See NPA Br. 4, 8.

B. REQUIREMENTS FOR DISCRETIONARY REVIEW AND ABOLITION OF PROFESSIONAL RESCUER DOCTRINE ARE NEITHER ACKNOWLEDGED NOR MET

1. NO SHOWING RAP 13.4 REQUIREMENTS MET FOR DISCRETIONARY REVIEW OF PROFESSIONAL RESCUER DOCTRINE

Though not citing RAP 13.4(b)(4), see NPA Br. 10-15, NPA repeats its earlier assertion the professional rescuer doctrine also somehow is “inimical” to the Court’s supposed “overarching duty to maintain public order.” NPA Br. 12. NPA speculates there must be “substantial public interest ... whether or not the judiciary should, on its own initiative, immunize local governments from the consequences of their decisions to hire so few police as to create significant public disorder, going so far as to create circumstances where officers should (according to the County’s Answer) apparently be trained to ‘shelter in place’ notwithstanding screaming victims until some sort of backup can arrive.” NPA Br. 14-15 (emphasis added).

NPA fails to identify any “significant public disorder” at issue, much less how the County’s allocation of scarce resources “create[d]” it. See also supra. n. 4. The professional rescuer doctrine does not “immunize local governments” - it is a defense available to any defendant when its test is met. See e.g. also Maltman v. Sauer, 84 Wn.2d 975, 981, 530 P.2d 254 (1975). Plaintiffs under RCW 41.26.281 are allowed to bring tort claims against a deputy’s employer only "as otherwise provided by law," and the professional rescuer doctrine is such a defense “otherwise provided by law.” See e.g. Hansen v. City of Everett, 93 Wn.App. 921, 924-25, 971 P.2d 111 (1999).

The “County’s answer” nowhere agrees its deputies were trained to “shelter in place notwithstanding screaming victims until some sort of back up can arrive.” See CP 20-33. Plaintiffs’ complaint establishes: 1) Deputy McCarthy was trained “to wait for back-up on dangerous calls;” 2) he pursued armed intruders alone after they were running away from the victims while someone was yelling at the fleeing suspects to “get out of here,” and 3) backup arrived less than 3½ minutes after he broadcast he had begun his solo pursuit. See CP 6, 17.

The requirements for discretionary review of the professional rescuer doctrine have not been met.

2. NO SHOWING THAT REQUIREMENTS FOR ABOLITION OF PROFESSIONAL RESCUER DOCTRINE ARE MET

NPA asserts this Court should “[a]bolish” the professional rescuer doctrine” as “outmoded” because “[m]odern tort law has evolved away from the professional rescuer doctrine as being patently inconsistent with general rules for assumption of risk in torts.” NPA Br. 10-11. Petitioners have not expressly requested this Court overturn its precedent, much less made this particular argument, see Pet. at 2-3, 20-27, and a "case must be made by the parties' litigant, and its course and the issues involved cannot be changed or added to by friends of the court." Long v. Odell, 60 Wn.2d 151, 154, 372 P.2d 548 (1962)(quotation marks and citation omitted).

NPA does not cite any tort law precedent, but instead relies on its mischaracterizations of legislative enactments from two states. See id. (citing N.J. Stat. Ann. § 2A:62A-21 (allowing officers to sue for negligence, with the express exception the right applies only to those “other than that law enforcement officer’s... employer or co-employee”)(emphasis added); Christensen v. Murphy, 296 Or. 610, 678 P.2d 1210, 1218 (1984) (holding “firemans’ rule” was abolished “[a]s a result of statutory abolition of implied assumption of risk”)). NPA cites no Washington legislation abolishing the professional rescuer doctrine or implied assumption of risk.

As this Court has noted, there are “four types of assumption of risk” and held the professional rescuer doctrine instead “is a type of implied primary assumption of the risk defense.” Beaupre v. Pierce County, 161 Wn.2d 568, 572, 166 P.3d 712 (2007) (citing Scott By & Through Scott v. Pac. W. Mountain Resort, 119 Wn.2d 484, 499, 834 P.2d 6 (1992)(emphasis added). In its earlier Scott decision, this Court had confirmed that “unreasonable assumption of the risk is assumption in the secondary sense which does not bar all recovery,” but that “primary implied assumption of risk should continue to be an absolute bar after the adoption of comparative fault because in this form it is a principle of ‘no duty’ and hence no negligence, thus negating the existence of any underlying cause of action.” Id. at 495, 497-499 (emphasis added).

NPA’s citation to Anderson does not support its argument because it expressly addressed the different “implied unreasonable assumption of risk,” and cited Scott for the principle which NPA misinterprets. Anderson v. Akzo Nobel Coatings, Inc., 172 Wn.2d 593, 260 P.3d 857 (2011). After Anderson this Court reaffirmed that “(express or implied) assumption of risk operates as a bar to recovery.” Stout v. Warren, 176 Wn.2d 263, 279, 290 P.3d 972 (2012)(emphasis added). See also Maltman, 84 Wn.2d at 979 (affirming dismissal of suit estate of decedents because a “professional rescuer may not collect damages” when the “hazard ultimately responsible for causing the [rescuer's] injury is inherently within the ambit of those dangers which are unique to and generally associated with the particular rescue activity.”)

Almost 50 years of our state’s professional rescuer precedent after Maltman cannot be overturned by NPA asserting it thinks this Court should “update and refocus Washington tort law ....” NPA Br. 5. Stare decisis instead requires precedent be followed unless it “has been shown to be incorrect and harmful,” or “the legal underpinnings of our precedent have changed or disappeared altogether.” Deggs v. Asbestos Corp., 186 Wn. 2d 716, 728-730, 381 P.3d 32 (2016) (quoting W.G. Clark Constr. Co. v. P. NW Reg’l Council of Carpenters, 180 Wn.2d 54, 66, 322 P.3d 1207 (2014)) (emphasis added). The County has shown the professional rescuer’s doctrine is not “incorrect and harmful,” and that “the legal underpinnings” of that precedent has neither “changed [n]or disappeared altogether.” See e.g. Cy’s Corrected Resp. Br. 53-55.

Adherence to precedent “promotes the evenhanded, predictable, and consistent development of legal principles, fosters reliance on judicial decisions, and contributes to the actual and perceived integrity of the judicial process.” See State v. Johnson, 188 Wn.2d 742, 756, 399 P.3d 507 (2017)(quoting Keene v. Edie, 131 Wn.2d 822, 831, 935 P.2d 588 (1997); Payne v. Tennessee, 501 U.S. 808, 827 (1991)). The law must be reasonably certain, consistent, and predictable so as to allow citizens to guide their conduct in society, see In re Matter of

Mercer, 108 Wn.2d 714, 720–21, 741 P.2d 559 (1987), and to allow trial judges to make decisions with a measure of confidence. See State v. Stalker, 152 Wn.App. 805, 810–11, 219 P.3d 722 (2009). Accordingly, this Court does “not lightly set aside precedent,” id. (citing State v. Kier, 164 Wn.2d 798, 804, 194 P.3d 212 (2008)), but requires the above described showing to avoid the law being seen as “subject to incautious action or the whims of current holders of judicial office.” In re Rights to Waters of Stranger Creek, 77 Wn.2d 649, 653, 466 P.2d 508 (1970)).

3. NO SHOWING COURT OF APPEALS ERRED
IN APPLYING PROFESSIONAL RESCUER DOCTRINE

NPA argues the Court of Appeals “[m]isconstrues the Doctrine” because the latter bars recovery “from the party whose negligence cause [sic] the rescuer’s presence at the scene,” yet the “County did not generate the disturbance that brought Deputy McCartney to the scene” and the doctrine “does not apply to negligent or intentional acts of intervening parties not responsible for bringing the rescuer to the scene.” NPA Br. at 13. See also Pet. at 25-26.

As authorities have observed, “in passing upon petitions for review” this Court “is not operating as a court of error” but “functioning as the highest policy-making judicial body of the state,” so discretionary review requires showing “there is a compelling need to have the issue or issues presented decided generally” so the issues “transcend the particular application of the law in question.” Ans. to Pet. 10 (quoting Washington Appellate Practice Deskbook, 27-8 to 27-9 (Wash. State Bar Assoc. 1993 & Supp. 1998)(emphasis added). NPA does not allege the error in the Court of Appeal’s application of the doctrine meets any of these requirements.

NPA also makes no attempt to refute the Court of Appeals analysis that rejected its argument because the alleged “negligence on the part of the County took place before McCartney began his rescue attempt, and there was no such intervening act by the County,” while the intervening negligence exception to the doctrine “applies only where the employer is ‘guilty of some negligence toward the rescuer after he, the rescuer, has begun to attempt the rescue.’” See McCartney 513 P.3d at 135 (citing Maltman, 84 Wn.2d at 982; quoting Beaupre, 161 Wn.2d at 571-72) (emphasis added). NPA makes no attempt to rebut the County’s response to the Petition that further noted the supposed “negligent funding, hiring, recruiting, deployment or other policy decisions made years earlier cannot be intervening since such ‘alleged negligence occurred before [the rescuer] responded’ and had not ‘created a new or unknown risk’ as the exception requires.” See Ans. to Pet. 24-25 (quoting Loiland v. State, 1 Wn.App.2d 861, 869, 407 P.3d 377 (2017), rev. denied, 190 Wn.2d 1013 (2018); Markoff v. Puget Sound Energy, Inc., 9 Wn.App.2d 833, 845, 447 P.3d 577 (2019)).

Because NPA refuses to acknowledge these identified and fully briefed defects in the alleged alternative professional rescuer claim of error, it fails to meet the requirements for discretionary review. Deciding the Petition's alternative professional rescuer issue would not avoid dismissal since the suit was properly dismissed on the independent ground of discretionary immunity.

IV. CONCLUSION

It is requested this Court deny discretionary review.
