CASE # 90507-0

REPLY ON THE:

MOTION TO SUBSTITUTE
"ANSWER TO PETITION FOR
REVIEW" WITH THE "AMENDED
ANSWER TO THE PETITION FOR

WITH PROOF OF SERVICE

TO CLERK OF THE SUPREME COURT

AND TO: HELMUT KAH, Attorney for Petitioner Johnson
6818 140th Ave NE

REPLY

It does not appear that there is any opposition to the "Motion to Substitute Answer" per se; however, the Petitioner asserts that the Amended Answer does not go far enough in that there is at least a second statement in the Answer that is still in need of amendment. The Respondent respectfully disagrees, and therefore this Reply addresses that second statement (that is in issue), as well as a third statement that is raised in the email objection.

ORIGINAL

attached to the Petitioner's Response – with the hope being that the Parties can put any remaining objections to rest and have the Court focus on the merits of the substantive arguments.¹

The issue of the Anti-SLAPP Defense being “tried” in Arbitration

In Julie Johnson's Petition to the Supreme Court she asserts that the Anti-SLAPP defense was “tried in Arbitration” (Pet. Br. p. 20. First line; Pet. Br. p. 5. There is no citation to the record) Other than her argument that this occurred, there is no record that the issues were tried, fully or otherwise.

And, as the Court of Appeals found (and as the Arbitrator's record is clear), the arbitrator “did not indicate the legal or factual basis for the award.” (Decision Filed May 12, 2014)² In line with what the arbitration award expressly reads (and what the Court of Appeals found), the Estate of Filon's Answer (and Amended Answer) to the Petition attempts (in Footnote 9, p. 11) to address what is deemed an overstatement of the record:

¹ Respondent's counsel is grateful to the Petitioner's counsel for identifying the unintentional misstatement so that it could be corrected – as the Parties are absolutely entitled to an accurate representation of the record.

² The Arbitrator's decision reads as follows: “Finding for Defendant Johnson. No Statutory damages or attorney's fees awarded to defendant Johnson.” [CP110-111 Arbitration Award, Attached as Exhibit A hereto]

In addition, Johnson states that her claim was tried in arbitration (Johnson Br. Pg. 5-6), but there is no such ruling by the Arbitrator and there is no record to support that finding. And Johnson's counsel acknowledged during argument before the Court of Appeals that the Arbitration Award makes no mention of such a claim.

That Johnson raised the purported Anti-SLAPP in her briefing to the arbitrator does not mean that that the defense was tried with the consent of Filion, or that it was decided by the arbiter or that it was the basis of the arbiter's ruling – all of which appear to be the argument advanced by the Petitioner. The point is that the Arbiter made no such express finding and thus there is no express record that establishes such a factual position.

The same (or more expansive) representation was made to the Court of Appeals during oral argument (and was included in the Petitioner's Reply Brief to the Court of Appeals)³ which resulted in the following colloquy between Petitioner's counsel and the Court of Appeals:

[MR KAH:] As the Court knows, this case was referred to mandatory arbitration. The parties had a mandatory arbitration hearing. The arbitrator decided in Ms. Johnson's favor based upon her claim of immunity under 4.24.510.

THE COURT: How do you know that?

MR. KAH: Pardon?

THE COURT: How do you -- how do we know that?

³ In her Reply Brief, Johnson asserted that "[t]he immunity defense is the basis on which the arbitrator denied Filion's claims." (Appellant's Reply Brief, p.17)

MR. KAH: It is in the briefing and it is in the record.

THE COURT: Where is it in the record that that was the basis for the arbitrator's award?

MR. KAH: We included, as part of the clerk's papers, a copy of Johnson's brief that was submitted in arbitration; that brief is part of the trial court record, actually.

THE COURT: But what -- what reflects the arbitrator's decision -- was based on -- on the anti-SLAPP statute?

MR. KAH: The arbitrator's award itself --

THE COURT: It might have been argued, but I want to know what the basis for the award was?

MR. KAH: Oh, what in the record reflects what the basis for the award was? I think it is on the face of the arbitrator's decision. The arbitrator, although it is not crystal clear in terms of being a decision in her favor -- under RCW 4.24.510, coupled with the fact that -- that defense is the basis for her defense at the arbitration hearing --

THE COURT: If --

MR. KAH: -- the arbitrator's --

THE COURT: If that had been the basis for the decision, wouldn't she have had mandatorily received her attorney's fees and a $10,000 mandatory penalty?

MR. KAH: Well if it -- if the decision had been made by a -- by a Superior Court judge, yeah, that is the case; however, the arbitrator's award expressly denies her recovery of her expenses --

THE COURT: Right?

MR. KAH: -- and reasonable attorney's fees.

THE COURT: And that suggests that that wasn't the basis for the Court's -- the arbitrator's decision.

MR. KAH: Well, we will never know because --

THE COURT: Right.

MR. KAH: We will never know for sure. However, that's not -- that's -- that really isn't germane to -- that really is not the primary basis for Ms. Johnson's position on this appeal, but she did file a request for trial de novo, and the case proceeded to a hearing on summary judgment. . .

[Transcript from Court of Appeals argument, pp. 5-7, Attached as Exhibit B and highlighted]

There is no reference to Anti-SLAPP as the (or a) basis for the arbitrator's award. Without an explicit record which supports the factual assertion that it was actually tried and decided, the Petitioner can only assert that the record reflects that her briefing to the arbitrator raised the Anti-SLAPP defense⁴ -- as that would reflect the most accurate record.

Estate of Filion's assertion regarding the basis for the criminal charges being dismissed.

In Johnson's email objection, under "other misstatements", Johnson asserts that it was a misstatement for the Estate of Filion to assert:

⁴ And the same argument can be made from the face of the Arbitration Award that the Arbitrator addressed Johnson's Prayer for Relief, as found in her Answer which requested "4. For defendant's costs and disbursements incurred herein; 5. For defendant's reasonable and actual attorney's fees;" [CP 8-10 Answer]

“After being charged with violating the restraining order, Mr. Filion’s criminal defense attorney was able to provide the omitted informano to the prosecutor and have the charge dismissed. (CP 5 – 6 First Amended Complaint; CP 236 Criminal Docket Report)”

Johnson asserts that the Criminal Docket Report only states: “City Moves to Dismiss in the Interests of Justice – Granted”, and that there is no support for the remaining assertion made above. However, the citation to the record is to the Amended Complaint (CP 5-6) which, at CP 6 lines 7-11 (emphasis added), reads:

Mr. Filion was prosecuted in King County District Court for violation of the no contact order. The charge was dismissed on motion of the prosecuting attorney when advised of the letter authorizing the visit to the home written by Mr. Olsen.

Defendant Johnson, by misrepresentation and false statements to police officers caused the false arrest and malicious prosecution of plaintiff.

Thus, the factual basis in the record was provided. And, additional factual bases are set forth in footnote 5 below.⁵

⁵ See CP 300-304, Response to Motion to Dismiss filed by Tim McGarry, at CP 301, Lines 8-11 (emphasis added):

Ms. Johnson told the police that Mr. Filion was violating a no contact order. Subsequently, Mr. Filion ws prosecuted. However the case was dismissed when the City Attorney learned that Mr. Filion had been instructed to go to the Johnson home to pick up his personal property. (See attachments).

See also (Second) Amended Complaint, CP 11-12; and see “Letter from Mark Olsen” at CP 305. See also: CP 140-147 at 146 which states that Filion was required to hire a criminal defense attorney to “advocate on his behalf”.

(Proceedings of 4/16/2014)

THE COURT: This is Johnson v. Estate of Fillion.

MR. KAH: Good morning, Your Honor.

May it please the Court, my name is Helmut Kah. I represent Julie Johnson, the appellant in this case, and Ms. Johnson is a defendant in the trial court below.

This case --

THE COURT: How much time would you like to reserve?

MR. KAH: Pardon?

THE COURT: How much time would you like to reserve?

MR. KAH: I would like to reserve four minutes.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. KAH: Thank you.

THE COURT: Proceed.

MR. KAH: As the Court knows, this case arises on Julie Johnson's August 1, 2006, phone call to 911 when Gary Fillion came upon the grounds of her home, and also upon her report to the responding sheriff's deputy.

Mr. Fillion was served with a summons and a notice

1 to appear for an arraignment on a charge of violation
2 of a no contact order.

3 He appeared in King County District -- well
4 actually in Shoreline Municipal Court at the Shoreline
5 Courthouse -- entered a plea of not guilty.

6 Subsequently the criminal charge was dismissed,
7 and on February 21, 2007, Mr. Filion filed the 8 underlying lawsuit in this case against Johnson in 9 which he seeks money damages from Johnson based on 10 allegations that when Mr. Filion arrived at Johnson's 11 residence on August 1, 2006, the police were called and 12 he was placed under arrest for violation of a no
13 contact order.

14 I would like to point out that the record shows
15 that he was never arrested, but what happened was that 16 he -- he left the scene, the police did not arrest him
17 that day, and he subsequently received a notice to 18 appear in the mail.

19 The parties' June 1, 2006, dissolution decree
20 restrains Mr. Filion from going upon the grounds of or 21 entering, and from coming within or remaining within 22 500 feet of the home of Johnson and her children.

23 The record shows that Mr. Filion's complaint seeks 24 to establish civil liability against Johnson based upon 25 her August 1, 2006, call to 911, and her report to the

1 responding deputy sheriff, and that --

2 THE COURT: And your claim with her -- her
3 defense is what is known as the "anti-SLAPP statute"?

4 MR. KAH: Yes, and she raised -- she raised
5 the immunity defense under --

6 THE COURT: Was that asserted in her
7 complaint or her answer to the complaint?

8 MR. KAH: No, she filed her answer pro se in 9 this way in 2007. Then she didn't hire counsel until 10 2008.

11 After she hired counsel, which was me, refiled a
12 CR 12B6 motion to dismiss raising -- as a basis for 13 dismissal of her immunity under RCW 4.24.510, and the 14 CR 12B6 also requests an award of expenses and 15 reasonable attorney's fees within that statute.

16 THE COURT: Do you think the anti-SLAPP
17 statute eliminates the common-law cause of action for 18 malicious prosecution?

19 MR. KAH: Well no, it doesn't, and I
20 addressed that in our reply brief, and case law cited
21 in the reply brief states that RCW 4.24.510 is actually 22 a codification of the common law, which protects 23 individuals from civil liability for reports to 24 government agencies.

25 So the argument that -- that 4.24.510 is in

1 derogation of the common law has already been decided 2 by a decision of the Court of Appeals, contrary to the 3 position taken by the respondent on this appeal.

4 Ms. Johnson has consistently throughout this case
5 asserted her defense of immunity under 4.24.510,
6 together with her request for an award of expenses and 7 reasonable attorney's fees.

8 As the Court knows, this case was referred to 9 mandatory arbitration. The parties had a mandatory
10 arbitration hearing.

11 The arbitrator decided in Ms. Johnson's favor
12 based upon her claim of immunity under 4.24.510.

13 THE COURT: How do you know that?

14 MR. KAH: Pardon?

15 THE COURT: How do you -- how do we know

16 that?

17 MR. KAH: It's in the briefings and it's in 18 the record.

19 THE COURT: Where is it in the record that

20 that was the basis for the arbitrator's award?

21 MR. KAH: We included as part of the brief

22 pages a copy of Johnson's motion that was submitted to

23 arbitration, that order is part of the trial court

24 record, actually.

25 THE COURT: But what is what reflects the

THE COURT: Would you like to continue with your rebuttal time?

MR. KAH: I would like to continue. Sure. I just have a couple of more comments.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. KAH: Ms. Johnson's defense is primarily based and governed by other decisions of the Court of Appeals in the cases of Dang v. Eric (phonetic) (1999);

1 Bailey v. State (2008), and in 2013, Lowe v. Rowe
2 (phonetic), a more recent decision by Division III, and
3 in Lowe v. Rowe, the Court of Appeals distinguishes RCW
4 4.24.510 and 4.24.525, and I think the distinction
5 expressed in the case of Lowe v. Rowe applies to this
6 case.

7 The Court stated that "the language of RCW
8 4.24.510 broadly grants immunity for civil liability
9 for communications to an agency concerning a matter
10 reasonably of concern to that agency."

11 And also the Court stated that "there's no doubt 12 that enforcement of state criminal laws is a matter of 13 concern for law enforcement."

14 And that frankly aptly describes the circumstances
15 of this case.

16 Ms. Johnson simply made a report to law
17 enforcement. She was sued under a claim for damages
18 for civil liability because she made a report to law
19 enforcement.

20 That is the absence of this case, and that kind of 21 claim is barred by 4.24.510.

22 Nothing under 4.24.525, which was first enacted in 23 2010, applies to this case.

24 THE COURT: So what if the trial court
25 determined that she had filed that claim with the

1 officer maliciously? Bad faith?

2 MR. KAH: Why did the --

3 THE COURT: Knew it was wrong?

4 MR. KAH: Well --

5 THE COURT: Shouldn't the Court have the 6 opportunity to look at that and determine whether or 7 not it was a reasonable report to a government agency
8 as opposed to trying to use the agency as a tool for 9 her own private purposes?

10 MR. KAH: Well, the record in the case
11 doesn't support a conclusion that Ms. Johnson used the 12 law enforcement agency for her own purposes, and --

13 THE COURT: But as a general proposition, if 14 you -- if you presume that you can never get past the 15 facts, that so long as it is a law enforcement agency
16 that receives the report, we would never know whether 17 or not someone is lying and abusing someone through the 18 reporting process, would we?

19 MR. KAH: But there are remedies for -- for 20 making false reports to law enforcement agencies, and 21 4.24.510 eliminates the civil damages remedy for making
22 such false reports, but it's -- I believe the record
23 shows that Ms. Johnson's report was not made in good
24 faith and was not made maliciously.

25 There was a Superior Court restraining order; that

1 restraining order precluded Mr. Filion from doing what
2 he did on August 1, 2006.

3 Ms. Johnson had warned Mr. Filion through the 4 realtor, the parties' realtor --

5 THE COURT: Let me ask, there is the -- the 6 anti-SLAPP statute was amended, I think, in 2010?

7 MR. KAH: Yes.

8 THE COURT: And are the arguments that you're 9 making based on the 2010 version or the prior version?

10 MR. KAH: No, it is based on the prior 11 version -- 4.24.510.

12 THE COURT: Okay.

13 MR. KAH: The 2010 amendment simply 14 established 4.24.525, which broadened the scope of the 15 anti-SLAPP protection for the state of Washington.

16 But as to the Court's question regarding good 17 faith, the case of Bailey v. State held that "there is 18 no requirement that a report or communication to a
19 government agency must be in good faith for the person
20 who makes that report to be immune from civil liability
21 under 4.24.510," and that "a finding of bad faith
22 affects only the ability of statutory damages."

23 So it is our position that this case -- that under 24 the facts of this case, Ms. Johnson clearly is entitled
25 to the immunity under 4.24.510; that she consistently

1 asserted her defense throughout the case in the trial
2 court.

3 She never waived the defense under 4.24.510, as 4 asserted by the respondent, and frankly failure to 5 include that defense in a document labeled "answer," is 6 not a waiver of the defense as explained in our 7 briefing.

8 THE COURT: Thank you.

9 MR. KAH: Thank you.

10 THE COURT: That did use up your full 10
11 minutes.

12 MR. KAH: Yes, I know.

13 THE COURT: All right, thank you.

14 Counsel?

15 MR. DAVIS: Good morning, Your Honor. My 16 name is Noah Davis and I represent the estate of Gary 17 Filion.

18 With me today is Mr. Filion's father, Les Filion.

19 I want to address a couple of comments that were 20 raised in the petitioner's argument to the Court just a
21 moment ago, and then I want to talk a little bit about 22 the facts and the facts that weren't included in the 23 argument.

24 First of all with respect to malicious prosecution
25 action, I'm a little bit confused by the argument that

1 was just made to the Court, because on one hand the
2 petitioner, Ms. Johnson, is arguing that malicious
3 prosecutions haven't been abrogated by this statute;
4 they haven't been taken away, but then at the end of 5 this statute he said, "Well 4.24 does away with the 6 remedy, the civil remedy that people have against those 7 that file false police reports against them," and 8 that's what a malicious prosecution action is.

9 It gives that civil remedy. It gives a correction
10 for false police reports that are filed against that 11 individual, and it is being taken away according to the 12 application that is asserted by Ms. Johnson, and 13 certainly the statute does not provide for that; it
14 does not state that that is its intent.

15 And since Washington relies heavily on California
16 law with respect to the anti-SLAPP, and that is 17 recorded throughout the cases discussing anti-SLAPP in 18 Washington, including the recent cases of this court --
19 Dylan v, Seattle Deposition Reporters, and also Davis
20 v. Cox. Those are 2014 cases involving anti-SLAPP
21 where the Court talks about the reliance on California
22 law, and California law doesn't do away with malicious
23 prosecutions; it ends up preserving those, but the 24 argument made by Ms. Johnson is to do away with -- with 25 those malicious prosecution actions.

1 The facts. The facts are so important. They --
2 both the substantive facts and the procedural facts,
3 because they -- it is what the anti-SLAPP claim is 4 premised upon, and it is what the legal application is 5 premised on. It is the facts.

6 The facts that are missing from what Ms. Johnson's 7 attorney asserted to the Court were that this was an 8 acrimonious divorce. This was really contentious. The 9 case was held in Snohomish County; approximately seven
10 witnesses testified; it was a long trial.

11 Ultimately a divorce decree is issued by the 12 Court. It has that restraining order, and it also has 13 that competing provision that says that Mr. Filion, who 14 has been trying to get his stuff back, is able to get 15 his stuff. It orders for him to get his stuff back.

16 So you have a mutual restraining order preventing
17 both parties from coming -- from disturbing the peace
18 of the other or coming onto the property of the other.

19 But then you have this competing order or 20 competing linkage in the same order that says Mr.
21 Filion is to go pick up his personal belongings from 22 Ms. Johnson.

23 So after the divorce, the attorneys write letters
24 to each other, and there is a long history of that;
25 that is over a couple of weeks if not a couple of

1 months.

2 They arrange a time for Mr. Fillion to pick up his
3 things from the residence.

4 There's a couple of important things about this
5 arrangement. Number 1 is that it is the last day that
6 the house is there before it sells. I mean the house
7 remains but the title to --

8 THE COURT: And if he stayed, the deputy
9 could have supervised him picking it up?

10 MR. DAVIS: Well when the police -- when the 11 police do come -- but the keys turned over at 9 o'clock
12 to the --

13 THE COURT: I understand all of that.

14 MR. DAVIS: Yes, so the property is there.

15 So Mr. Fillion believes that that's it. If he has 16 got to pick it up before 9 o'clock, they arrange for 4
17 o'clock -- only five hours.

18 She is not supposed to be there. So that was the 19 agreement that the attorneys worked out. She's not 20 supposed to be there.

21 Mr. Fillion is on the way over there. He arranges
22 a --

23 THE COURT: And clearly knew she was there?

24 MR. DAVIS: Yeah.

25 The real estate agent calls over and says, "She is

1 still there. She doesn't want you to come over."

2 He says, "I have got movers; I have arranged for 3 people to come over. I am going to come pick up my 4 things."

5 THE COURT: A little self-help?

6 MR. DAVIS: The self-help movers, correct.

7 (Laughter)

8 MR. DAVIS: So he's going to pick up his 9 things, and so she was delayed in moving out, and that 10 is of course in the record.

11 One thing that's in the record that wasn't
12 discussed in the argument, and I don't think is really 13 that clear in either briefing is the property wasn't
14 even there. His stuff wasn't even there at the time.
15 She never told him, "Don't come over. Not only am I
16 here, but your stuff is not even here."

17 Talk about maliciousness. Talk about calling the 18 cops and reporting him for coming over there to pick up
19 his stuff that wasn't even there.

20 It sounds like a setup. It sounds like it is 21 maliciousness on the part of Ms. Johnson, and that goes
22 to the nature --

23 THE COURT: Well if that is such an important
24 fact, why isn't it emphasized in your briefing?

25 MR. DAVIS: It should have been.

1 When I was reviewing for the argument -- it is in
2 Pete Jorgenson's declaration -- I believe it appears in 3 other parts of the record.

4 In preparing for today's argument, I realized that 5 a fact came back to me, and I said, "That is the 6 maliciousness. That shows her intent, her ill will,"
7 but when she reports Mr. Filion to the police when he 8 does arrive, there's other people present on the 9 property. She is not the only one there.

10 A gentleman comes out and says Ms. Johnson is 11 calling the police, so he leaves. He goes out, grabs
12 his parents, grabs the moving van, and they -- they 13 leave the scene at that time.

14 She then calls the police -- she had called 911.
15 The police officer comes over. She gives them a copy
16 of the restraining order. She doesn't say, "Oh, by the 17 way, there was an agreement between the lawyers with 18 all these letters, this history of letters where we 19 arrange for him to come over and pick up his stuff
20 today. I didn't tell him that the stuff is not here."

21 She also doesn't mention to the police officer
22 that there is this competing language that says that
23 "Gary Filion shall come pick up his personal property."

24 So the police officer doesn't have that 25 information, is not aware of any of that information.

1 Charges are filed for violating the restraining
2 order, which results in a malicious prosecution action.

3 After the filing of the case, and these are the 4 procedural facts that are so important, after the 5 filing of the case, Ms. Johnson -- admittedly pro se,
6 initially -- filed an answer. There is no affirmative
7 defense.

8 She then gets counsel. There is no motion to 9 amend that answer. There is no counterclaim -- paid
10 for or filed; there is no affirmative defense that is 11 made in some later answer or amended answer or in a
12 motion to amend the answer. So it's not there.

13 THE COURT: When you defended against the 14 motion, was that argument made?

15 MR. DAVIS: Before Judge Armstrong it
16 certainly was.

17 THE COURT: But --

18 MR. DAVIS: Before Judge --

19 THE COURT: -- initially?

20 MR. DAVIS: Initially I was not counsel of 21 record. I don't know if that argument was made at that 22 stage.

23 So but Mr. Kah admittedly did raise that in this 24 motion after the answer had already been filed, and 25 according to the civil rules, you have the choice; you

1 either can file a motion to dismiss, which includes
2 affirmative defense, or file an answer, which includes
3 affirmative defense, but you don't file an answer and 4 not include the affirmative defenses and still have the 5 ability to file the motion. That is not how those 6 affirmative defenses work.

7 And Judge Armstrong got it right when she said,
8 "Look, you have waived that. You have had this whole
9 opportunity to raise this affirmative defense by answer
10 and you didn't do that."

11 We go back to the arbitration --

12 THE COURT: Unless the claim is litigated
13 with the consent of the parties?

14 MR. DAVIS: Correct, and certainly it's not.
15 Certainly it is not.

16 I know that --

17 THE COURT: Litigated at the arbitration?

18 MR. DAVIS: At the arbitration proceeding,
19 which again I was not -- I was not involved in, and the 20 arbitration award certainly doesn't make any mention of 21 the anti-SLAPP statute; it just denies Mr. Filion's
22 claim for malicious prosecution. It denies --

23 THE COURT: But they said it was raised,
24 though, right?

25 MR. DAVIS: They do say that it's raised, and

1 I would assert that it was also defended that it
2 doesn't apply, but I can only make the same assertion
3 that Mr. Kah is making when he says, "Well, it was 4 raised."

5 Well it certainly was objected to. I would be 6 certain of that.

7 And so it's never been --

8 THE COURT: That makes it sound like it was 9 tried with the consent of the parties, though, doesn't 10 it?

11 MR. DAVIS: But Your Honor, I guess -- tried 12 with the consent of the party is a little bit tricky
13 for me to respond to because in the sense that is it
14 objected to? Does it apply? Is the argument being 15 made that this statute doesn't apply to these facts?

16 Well then that's not tried with the consent of the 17 parties. That would be my personal opinion.

18 Tried with the consent of the parties would mean
19 to say, "Okay, it applies, or it was raised, or it is 20 part of this proceeding; let's -- let's really argue
21 the substance of it.

22 And I don't think that that was the case, so I
23 think it has been objected to throughout the history of 24 this case, so without -- it has not been allowed with 25 the consent of the parties.

1 And that was Judge Armstrong's ruling at the end,
2 too. "It has been objected to continuously through
3 this case."

4 But the not agreed part -- there's two things that 5 I need to address before my time is up, and one is the 6 not being agreed, and then the second is the 7 substantive, most important issue of whether or not 8 anti-SLAPP is a public or private concern as used in 9 this case.

10 The agreed party argument, just briefly -- after 11 the arbitration we assert that Mr. -- Mr. Kah's client,
12 Ms. Johnson, is not an agreed party because there is no
13 affirmative defense, no counterclaim pled.

14 There is nothing to appeal from from the 15 arbitration.

16 She wins the arbitration because Mr. Johnson --
17 Mr. Filion has denied the malicious prosecution claim.
18 The case is over. No longer agreed party.

19 This court at that point can end this case. There 20 is no judgment because there is no standing. There is 21 no de novo appeal; nothing emanates from that, which is 22 the position that the estate has tried to articulate
23 for a long time -- by dismissing the complaint; also 24 offering to dismiss the complaint without fees, over 25 and over again, and the record is replete with those

1 opportunities.

2 The estate just wanted to get out of this case
3 without paying, either side paying any fees, and Ms.
4 Johnson won't let that go.

5 On the issue of anti-SLAPP, whether it applies to 6 this case, an acrimonious divorce between two private
7 people, the answer is absolutely not, and a report to a
8 police officer about an alleged violation of a
9 restraining order that's not without -- including all
10 of the material facts, not only is a false police
11 report that's not constitutionally protected, but it is 12 not a matter of public concern.

13 This is not a domestic violence issue. This is an 14 acrimonious, private dispute between the parties, and 15 there's so many examples that I could give of false
16 police reporting that there would be no remedy if we
17 allow this situation to continue and the Court to rule
18 in Ms. Johnson's favor.

19 THE COURT: Thank you, Counsel, your time is 20 up.
