If I were to add anything it would be to say the public defender, Jon Fay did more harm than good for me. If I had defended my self I could have proved by asking a few simple questions that the victim was a liar and that I never molested her. Questions which Mr Fay refused to ask. Also, several statements I made to the detectives were said as jokes and/or taken out of context and were given completely different meanings. Mr Fay did not ask or say anything about this in trial. Mr Fay said he was very busy and did not have time to show me all the evidence to be used against me. He also told me I was not allowed to say anything negative about the victim even if it proved my innocents. Essentially, I was led into court cuffed, blindfolded and gagged. How could this be considered a "fair" trial?
