I. ANSWER

The Petition should be denied. Nowhere in the Petition do the Daviscourts identify a RAP 13.4(b) basis for justifying review. The Daviscourts do not even challenge the appellate court's substantive ruling.

The Daviscourts take issue with the appellate court not hearing oral argument, but an appellant has no right to oral argument. Appeals can and are regularly decided without oral argument. The appellate court did not error in deciding the case without oral argument.

The grounds for accepting review are not present. The Petition should be denied.
