I. IDENTITY OF PETITIONER AND CITATION.

Appellants William Sornsin, Marc T. Beck, Robert Goree, Aarti Varma, Evan W. Lewis, Benjamin G. Joldersma, Brian N. Ku, Damien Joldersma, Donald J. Clore, and Joseph C. Wright, respectfully petition the Supreme Court to grant discretionary review of Sornsin, et al v. Scout Media, Inc. et al, No. 78278-9-I, 2019 Wash. App. LEXIS 2600, 2019 WL 5107004 (Ct. App. Oct. 14, 2019).

II. ISSUE PRESENTED FOR REVIEW.

Does the definition of “wage” include compensation at termination of employment for Paid Time Off that has been earned by an employee?

III. STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

A. Introduction.

This case arises from a policy in Scout Media, Inc.’s (“Scout”) Employee Handbook that effects the forfeiture of earned Paid Time Off (“PTO”) benefits if an employee does not provide two weeks’ notice prior to resignation. The Court of Appeals incorrectly held that Scout’s Employee Handbook is a contract and that Appellants’ PTO benefits are subject only to the “contract” between Scout and its former employees. The Court of Appeals also held that PTO is not a “wage” under Washington law reasoning that there is no statutory right to payout for PTO earned on an hours worked basis in contradiction of this Court’s definition of “wage.” Because this case presents both matters of public interest and the Court of Appeals’s decision is in conflict with published authority, review by the Supreme Court is warranted.

B. Factual History of the Case

Appellants worked for Scout in various capacities and for different lengths of time but all of them resigned their employment on July 19, 2016. CP 125-33; 152-57; 160-65. Employees of Scout accrued PTO at a rate of between 4.62 and 9.24 hours per pay period. CP 113. Scout's Employee Handbook states, "[n]othing in these guidelines should be construed as creating any contractual rights or obligations." CP 92. Upon their departure, Appellants received a document from Scout that stated in pertinent part that all accrued PTO would be paid at 100%. CP 132, 138-141.

When PTO was not paid on July 21, 2016, Appellant William Sornsin emailed to the Respondents, among others, the Appellants' demand for payment of accrued PTO. CP 132-136. Respondents Mallitz, Robinson, and Fahmy were on Scout's board of directors and Respondent Amazeen was the President of Scout on the date of Appellants' resignations. CP 132. Scout willfully failed to pay the Appellants their wages at the direction of its Board of Directors. CP 159. Following Scout's bankruptcy, the Respondents have continued to withhold payment of the Appellants' wages. Furthermore, Respondents have testified that they knew that Appellants had not been paid their accrued PTO and that the Respondents did nothing to ensure payment of Appellants' accrued PTO. CP 279; 282-283; 289-290; 235.

C. Relevant Procedural History Of This Action

This action was filed by the Appellants on December 16, 2016. CP 1-8. Respondents answered on June 7, 2017. CP 15-26.

On February 9, 2018, Appellants and Respondents filed competing Motions for Summary Judgment. On March 9, 2018, Judge North granted Respondents' Motion for Summary Judgment and dismissed Appellants' claims with prejudice. CP 663. In the same order, Judge North denied Appellants' Motion for Partial Summary Judgment. Id.

Appellants appealed, and Division I of the Court of Appeals affirmed the trial court's determination in an opinion dated October 14, 2019.

IV. ARGUMENT.

Under RAP 13.4(b), the Supreme Court will grant discretionary review if a decision conflicts with Supreme Court or published Court of Appeals authority, or if it presents an issue of substantial public interest.

A. There Is A Public Interest in Whether Accrued PTO Should Be Treated as Wages Under the Law.

Many employees in Washington earn PTO in a manner that is the same or substantially similar to the Appellants in this case. There is a public interest in determining whether such earned PTO is to be treated as a wage or whether an employer can institute an arbitrary policy to cut off payment for earned PTO.

When an employee's employment ends, "whether by discharge or by voluntary withdrawal, the wages due him or her...shall be paid to him or her at the end of the established pay period[.]” RCW 49.48.010. When an employer refuses to pay wages “[a]ny employer and any officer, vice principal or agent of any employer...shall be liable in a civil action by the aggrieved employee...to judgment for twice the amount of the wages unlawfully...withheld[.]” RCW 49.52.070. “A person is a ‘vice principal’ and personally liable under RCW 49.52.070 in a wrongful withholding of wages case when that person exercises control over the payment of funds and acts under that authority.” Durand v. HIMC Corp., 151 Wn. App. 818, 835, 214 P.3d 189 (2009) (citing Ellerman v. Centerpoint Prepress, Inc., 143 Wn.2d 514, 22 P.3d 795 (2001)). Furthermore, “financial inability of an employer to pay wages owed is not a defense to avoid personal liability.” Morgan v. Kingen, 166 Wn.2d 526, 535, 210 P.3d 995 (2009). This is true regardless of whether an employer enters bankruptcy. Id.; Schilling v. Radio Holdings, Inc., 136 Wn.2d 152, 163-64 (1998).

In defining the term “wages” for the purposes of RCW 49.48 et seq. “Washington Courts have looked to the definition of this term in a related statute, RCW 49.46.010(2).” McGinnity v. AutoNation, Inc., 149 Wn. App. 277, 284, 202 P.3d 1009 (2009). “‘Wage’ means compensation due to an employee by reason of employment[.]” RCW 49.46.010(7). This Court has expanded the definition of “wage” to include “payments tied to hours worked.” Hisle v. Todd Pac. Shipyards, 151 Wn.2d 853, 868, 93 P.3d 108 (2004).

Scout’s employee handbook contains the following formula for employee accrual of PTO:

PTO Allotment

Company provided PTO is granted to Full Time Regular employees hired after January 1, 2013 as follows in a calendar year:

Years of Service:	Full-Time	Accrual Per Pay Period
1-4 years	120 hours	4.62
5-9 years	160 hours	6.16
10-19 years	200 hours	7.70
20 or more years	240 hours	9.24

CP 113.

The employees would accrue PTO based on hours worked or each “pay period.” The employee could then receive pay when they took time off for vacation or sick leave. The accrued PTO should fall under the definition of “wage” because it is directly tied to an employee’s hours worked.

Scout’s employee handbook also contains a provision that works a forfeiture of payment for accrued PTO upon an employee’s termination of employment:

PTO Pay Upon Termination

Employees will be paid out 70% of PTO they have accrued at employment end. If an employee leaves the Company before accruing what has already been taken, at the time of the employee’s last paycheck, the employee will be responsible for payment of PTO time owed to the Company.

Scout reserves the right to withhold any and all PTO time if an employee neglects to give a two week notice of termination regardless of position or length of service.

CP 114.

Appellants’ PTO wages were withheld under this policy.

Appellants argued at summary judgment and at the Court of Appeals that this provision, which denies an employee compensation for hours already worked, was precluded by Washington law. The Court of Appeals reasoned, citing Montana and Minnesota cases, that an employer can condition payment for accrued PTO. Slip Op. at 8.

The Court of Appeals also cited *Walters v. Ctr. Elec. Inc.*¹ reasoning that a “right to payment for accrued PTO is only contractual.” Slip Op. at 7. However, Walters is a breach of contract case where the court stated in pertinent part, “[c]learly...we are not...interpreting any statute which pertains to vacation pay or vacation time. Neither are we ascertaining whether or not pay in lieu of vacation constitutes ‘wages’ under a wage payment act such as RCW 49.48.010.” 8 Wn. App. at 326.

The Court of Appeals reasoned that “appellants claim that the manual is not a contract, they do not identify any other contract providing them with PTO payment rights.” Slip Op. at 7. Despite the Respondents’ arguments, Scout’s Employee Handbook is not a contract. CP 92. It is a document that unilaterally sets policies for the company. In setting those policies, the handbook created a statutory right to payment for accrued PTO because such payments are “directly tied to hours worked.” Hisle, 151 Wn.2d at 863.

When an employer has received the benefit of an employee’s labor it should not be allowed to deny the employee those earned wages by creating an arbitrary condition. The condition of working the hours to earn the PTO should be the only condition allowable under Washington law. Any other approach provides employers the opportunity to arbitrarily withhold earned wages from employees.

B. It is in The Interest of the State to Recognize Workers' Rights That Are Competitive With Those of Neighboring States.

Washington has long prided itself on being a pioneer for the protection of employee rights. See Hisle, 151 Wn.2d at 861 (Washington is “a pioneer for protection of employee rights.”)(citing Drinkwitz v. Alliant Techsystems, Inc., 140 Wn.2d 291, 996 P.2d 582 (2000)); Schilling, 136 Wn.2d at 159 (“The [wage] statute must be liberally construed to advance the Legislature's intent to protect employee wages and assure payment.”). However, on this issue, Washington is several decades behind other western states as well as a number of other states.

In its decision, the Court of Appeals ignores this Court’s definition of “wage” set forth in Hisle which compels the same conclusion that has been reached in Oregon, Idaho, and California; that accrued PTO, tied to hours worked, are deferred wages that the employee has earned and must be compensated for upon termination of employment.

There are certain states that mandate the payment of accrued PTO by express statutory language. Both Louisiana and Nebraska are such states. The wage statute in Nebraska specifically requires the payment of “earned but unused vacation leave to a separating employee.” Fisher v. Payflex Sys. USA, Inc., 285 Neb. 808, 813, 829 N.W. 2d 703 (2013) (citing Neb. Rev. Stat. § 48-1229(4)). However, Nebraska’s Supreme Court reasoned that the statute requiring payment for vacation leave also required the payment of unused PTO hours because the employees “had an absolute right to take this time off for any purpose they wished[.]”

Fisher, 285 Neb. at 819.

Similarly, in Louisiana, “unused ‘paid time off’ that an employee has accrued during the course of and based on work under the terms of his or her employment constitutes wages earned during a pay period due under the Louisiana Wage Payment Act.” Davis v. St. Francisville Country Manor, LLC, 136 So. 3d 20, 24 (La. Ct. App. 2013) (emphasis in original) (citing Boudreaux v. Hamilton Medical Group, Inc., 644 So. 2d 619 (La. 1994)). Louisiana’s statutory scheme even contemplates the injustice that Scout’s employee handbook seeks to perpetrate: “The provision of this Subsection shall not be interpreted to allow the forfeiture of any vacation pay actually earned by an employee pursuant to the employer’s policy.” La. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 23.631(D)(2). “When an employer promises a benefit to employees, and employees accept by their actions in meeting the conditions, the result is a not a mere gratuity or illusory promise, but a vested right in the employee to the promised benefit.” Davis, 136 So. 3d at 24 (citing Knecht v. Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities and Northwestern State University, 591 So. 2d 690 (La. 1991)).

Several other states have found a statutory right to payout for earned PTO without express statutory language to that effect. For example, Oregon “construe[s] ‘wages’ to mean all earned compensation contracted to be paid by the employer for the employee’s personal service regardless of the nature of such compensation.” State ex rel. Nilsen v.

Oregon State Motor Asso., 248 Ore. 133, 136, 432 P.2d 512 (1967). “No discretion is vested in the employer to withhold the vacation provided the employee meets the contract terms for eligibility. To earn this right the employee is required to perform personal service. The vacation is given for this personal service.”² Id. “As commonly understood, the term ‘wages’ as well as the term ‘compensation’ includes vacation pay.” Id. 248 Ore. at 138. Oregon comes by this definition indirectly³ in almost an identical manner that Appellants pray this Court interpret “wage” based on the definition from Hisle.

Idaho also interprets “wages” to include pay out for accrued PTO. Whitlock v. Haney Seed Co., 114 Idaho 628, 634-35, 759 P.2d 919 (1988).⁴ There the court reasoned “payment for earned vacation is directly analogous to wages. All courts that have considered this question under their respective wage claim statutes have concluded likewise.” Id. 114 Idaho at 634 n.6 (citing Hartman v. Freedman, 197 Colo. 275, 591 P.2d 1318 (1979); Die & Mold, Inc. v. Western, 448 N.E.2d 44 (Ind.Ct.App.1983); Tompkins v. Schering Corp., 441 So.2d 455 (La.Ct.App.1983); Nilsen, 248 Or. 133, 432 P.2d 512 (1967)).

Similarly, California has held that “[t]he right to a paid vacation,

² It is important to note that the conditions provided for in Oregon, as well as in other states, is the actual work performed to earn the PTO, not satisfying an arbitrary policy, like providing two-weeks’ notice.

³ Nilsen, 248 Or. at 135.

⁴ Since Whitlock was decided, Idaho Code Ann. § 45-609 has been redesignated as Idaho Code Ann. § 45-601, a copy of which can be found in the appendix.

when offered in an employer's policy or contract of employment, constitutes deferred wages for services rendered. Case law from this state and others, as well as principles of equity and justice compel the conclusion that a proportionate right to a paid vacation 'vests' as the labor is rendered." Suastez v. Plastic Dress-Up Co., 31 Cal. 3d 774, 784, 647 P.2d 122 (1982). This "right is protected from forfeiture by [Cal. Lab. Code] § 227.3." Id. However, "[e]ven before the enactment of section 227.3...[c]ourts have allowed recovery for vacation pay despite the fact that contract eligibility requirements were not met, if the employee had substantially performed." Id. 31 Cal. 3d at 783.

In reaching this conclusion, the Supreme Court of California reasoned, "[i]t is established that vacation pay is not a gratuity or a gift, but is, in effect, additional wages for services performed. Id. 31 Cal. 3d at 779 (citation omitted). "Courts in other jurisdictions which have considered whether discharged or striking employees have a 'vested' right to a pro rata share of vacation pay have uniformly held that the right vests as services are rendered." Id. 31 Cal. 3d at 781.

It is beyond dispute that an agreement to pay vacation pay to employees made to them before they performed their services, and based upon length of service and time worked, is not a gratuity but is a form of compensation for services, and when the services are rendered, the right to secure the promised compensation is vested as much as the right to receive wages or other form of compensation.

Id. (citing Livestock Feeds v. Local Union No. 1634, 73 So.2d 128 (Miss.

“If some share of vacation pay is earned daily, it would be both inconsistent and inequitable to hold that employment on an arbitrary date is a condition precedent to the vesting of the right to such pay.” Suastez, 31 Cal. 3d at 782.

The Scout Employee Handbook’s arbitrary denial of full compensation for accrued PTO would be precluded in all of the above-mentioned states. All of these states, whether expressly by statute or by interpretation of wage statutes, define payment for accrued PTO be a wage that has been earned by an employee. The same is true of the forfeiture contained in Scout’s Employee Handbook. Certain states expressly forbid such a forfeiture in the statutory schemes while others simply require the full payment of earned wages, in this case earned PTO.

V. CONCLUSION.

As the Appellants have demonstrated, the Court of Appeals’ decision conflicts with existing authority and raises substantial issues affecting the public interest. The Court of Appeals failed to interpret Washington’s entire statutory scheme related to the payment of wages in the form of accrued PTO. For these reasons, the Appellants respectfully request the Court grant discretionary review.

LEACH, J. — Ten former employees of Scout Media Inc. appeal the trial court's summary dismissal of their failure to pay wages claim. They claim an affirmative statutory entitlement to payment for accrued paid time off (PTO) that they did not use before they voluntarily quit. Because they have no statutory right to payment and do not claim a contractual right, we affirm.

FACTS

On July 10, 2016, many members of the technology team of Scout Media Inc., including appellants, resigned at the same time without prior notice. The parties agree that Scout Media paid appellants all salary earned as of their date of resignation and did not pay appellants for their accrued and unused PTO. Scout's employee manual addresses "PTO Pay Upon Termination." It states, in relevant part, "Employees will be paid out 70% of PTO they have accrued at employment end. . . . Scout reserves the right to withhold any and all PTO time if an employee neglects to give a two week notice of termination regardless of position or length of service."

In early December 2016, Scout Media filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings.¹ Later that month, appellants filed a lawsuit against Scout Media, Scout Media's former president and former directors, and Pilot Group GP LLC, a former investor in Scout Media's parent company (together Scout), claiming failure to pay wages and unjust enrichment. Appellants later dismissed their claim of unjust enrichment and their claim against Pilot Group. Both parties filed motions for summary judgment. The court denied appellants' motion and granted Scout's motion. Appellants appeal.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

This court reviews an order granting summary judgment de novo and performs the same inquiry as the trial court.² It considers all facts and reasonable inferences in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party.³ And it affirms summary judgment only when the evidence presented demonstrates no genuine issue of material fact and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.⁴

ANALYSIS

Appellants make three claims: (1) they have an affirmative statutory right to payment of their accrued PTO, (2) the individual respondents are liable to them for the balance of their accrued PTO and for double damages because Scout's board of directors instructed Scout not to pay them for their accrued PTO, and (3) they are entitled to prejudgment interest on their unpaid PTO. We disagree.

Appellants assert that they have an affirmative statutory entitlement to payment for their accrued PTO because hours worked determines the amount of accrued PTO, placing PTO within the definition of “wages” under former RCW 49.46.010(2) (2011). Scout responds that an employee’s right to PTO is only contractual.

Appellants rely on cases where Washington courts have looked to former RCW 49.46.010(2)’s definition of “wages” to define “wages” in other statutory provisions.⁵ RCW 49.46.010(7), formerly RCW 49.46.010(2),⁶ defines “wages” as “compensation due to an employee by reason of employment.” Appellants assert that McGinnity v. AutoNation, Inc.⁷ shows that unpaid vacation benefits are wages under this definition and Naches Valley School District No. JT3 v. Cruzen⁸ shows that a sick leave cash-out represents wages. These cases do not establish an affirmative statutory entitlement to payment for accrued PTO for two reasons.

First, each case examined whether the contested benefit was “wages” within the meaning of RCW 49.48.030, a fee shifting statute allowing an employee to recover attorney fees in any action in which the employee successfully recovers wages or salary owed to him.⁹ RCW 49.48.030 is a remedial statute that must be construed liberally in favor of the employee.¹⁰ McGinnity's and Cruzen's characterization of unpaid vacation and sick leave as wages is specific to this remedial attorney fees statute. It is not at issue here.

Second, the contested benefits were contractual, not statutory. In McGinnity, plaintiffs prevailed on their breach of contract claim for loss of vacation benefits.¹¹ And in Cruzen, the language of the collective bargaining agreement (CBA) at issue required that the school district pay teachers for their sick leave accrued for the contract period.¹² Neither case involved failure to pay a statutorily required amount, like a minimum wage or overtime.

Next, appellants note a statement in Hisle v. Todd Pacific Shipyards Corp.¹³ that RCW 49.46.010(7)'s definition of "wages" includes payments that are "tied to hours worked." But our Supreme Court cited former RCW 49.46.010(2)'s definition of "wages" only as context to explain that the Washington Minimum Wage Act (MWA)¹⁴ prohibits employees and employers from bargaining collectively to establish wages or other conditions less than the statutory minimum but does not otherwise restrict their freedom to bargain.¹⁵ The court ultimately held that the CBA provision for a retroactive payment, tied to hours worked, was subject to the overtime provisions of the MWA.¹⁶ Hisle does not concern accrued PTO or a statutory right to PTO. Instead, it involves a contractual wage entitlement to which the MWA applied. Appellants neither claim a contractual right to payment of their PTO nor claim a statutory right based on a specific statutory guaranty like the MWA's overtime provision.

Appellants cite no case, treatise, or other authority directly supporting their claim that they have an affirmative statutory entitlement to payment for their accrued PTO.

Scout claims that an employee's right to payment for accrued PTO is only contractual and additionally asserts that Scout's manual is a contract that establishes appellants' PTO rights. First, Scout relies on Walters v. Center Electric, Inc.,¹⁷ in which Walters claimed that he had a right to vacation pay in lieu of vacation time. In rejecting this argument, Division Two stated, "The amount of vacation time to which an employee is entitled is determined by the terms of the employment contract. . . . There is nothing in Mr. Walters' contract of employment which expressly grants the right to extra compensation."¹⁸ Second, Scout cites Teamsters, Local 117 v. Northwest Beverages, Inc.,¹⁹ in which this court stated that the collective bargaining agreement did not provide for a cash-out of accrued but unused sick leave. And “[n]o statute, ordinance, or any source directs this employer to cash out accrued but unused sick leave.”²⁰ This court reasoned, “Cruzen does not support a conclusion that sick leave is a form of wages when the CBA does not have a cashout provision.” “[A]ccrued sick leave is a contingent benefit that does not constitute wages under this statute unless it is so defined by another source.”²¹ Appellants cite no authority to counter the proposition that in Washington an employee’s right to payment for accrued PTO is only contractual.

Although appellants claim that the manual is not a contract, they do not identify any other contract providing them with PTO payment rights. And they assert that the manual’s PTO pay-upon-termination policy conflicts with Washington wage law because it limits payment to 70 percent of an employee’s accrued PTO and conditions payment on the employee giving two weeks’ notice of his termination. This argument conflicts with the Washington State Department of Labor & Industries (DLI) guidance on workplace rights. The DLI advises,

Paid vacation, holiday, and severance pay are considered voluntary benefits that a business may choose to offer workers. Washington State law does not require a business to provide these benefits. Even though there is no state law requiring a business to pay these benefits upon termination, if the business promises workers these benefits and does not follow through, workers can contact an attorney or file in small claims court for their unpaid benefits.^[22]

In addition, Scout cites two cases from other jurisdictions to persuade this court that an employer may condition payment of accrued benefits on conditions precedent. In Chipman v. Northwest Healthcare Corp., Applied Health Services, Inc.,²³ the Supreme Court of Montana stated, “The right to earn compensation for personal time may be subject to reasonable restrictions and conditions precedent.” And in Lee v. Fresenius Medical Care, Inc.,²⁴ the Supreme Court of Minnesota stated, “[E]mployers are permitted to set conditions that employees must meet in order to exercise their earned right to vacation time with pay[, including] the right to accrued vacation ‘wages,’ whether in the form of actual paid time off or payment in lieu of paid time off.” Scout’s appellate counsel stated during oral argument that he is unaware of any in-state or out-of-state authority prohibiting an employer from conditioning payment for accrued PTO. Appellants have not cited any. And appellants did not comply with the manual’s requirement that employees provide two weeks’ notice of termination to receive 70 percent of their accrued PTO.

²⁴ 741 N.W.2d 117, 126 (2007).

Because appellants do not show that they have an affirmative statutory entitlement to payment for their accrued PTO, we need not review their claims of respondents' derivative liability and their entitlement to prejudgment interest.

We affirm.

CONSTITUTIONALITY.

CONSTITUTIONALITY.

Defendant's contention that this chapter violates the contract clause of the United States Constitution was without merit; the constitutional impairment of contract clause protects only those contractual obligations already in existence at the time the disputed law is enacted, and Idaho's wage claim act was first passed in 1893, well before the obligation in question. State ex rel. Dept. of Labor & Indus. Servs. v. Hill, 118 Idaho 278, 796 P.2d 155 \(Ct. App. 1990\).

EMPLOYEE.

By using the term "employee," the legislature indicated that the provisions of this chapter should apply only to employees, not independent contractors. Ostrander v. Farm Bureau Mut. Ins. Co., 123 Idaho 650, 851 P.2d 946 \(1993\).

When determining whether there exists an employee/employer relationship for the purpose of Idaho's wage claim statute, it is not the labels applied by the parties which control, but rather the actual indicia of such a relationship; the general test of an employee/employer relationship is the right to control work, and if the employer retains the right to control and to direct the activities of the employee in the details of work performed, and to determine the hours to be spent and the times to start and stop the work, the person performing work will be deemed an employee. State ex rel. Dep't of Labor & Indus. Servs. v. Hill, 118 Idaho 278, 796 P.2d 155 \(Ct. App. 1990\).

PAID TIME OFF.

Paid time off constitutes wages which must be paid within ten days of termination of employment.. Warnecke v. Nitrocision, LLC, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 170656 (D. Idaho Nov. 29, 2012).

PURPOSE.

The 1967 amendment to Idaho's claim for wages statutes was not intended to change the rule enunciated by previous cases which stopped the running of penalties upon a tender of the full amount of wages due. Gano v. Air Idaho, Inc., 99 Idaho 720, 587 P.2d 1255 \(1978\).

The purpose of the wage and hour law is to ensure that employees receive compensation due to them upon termination of their employment. De Witt v. Medley, 117 Idaho 744, 791 P.2d 1323 \(Ct. App. 1990\).

WAGES.

Where an employer was preparing to sell a division of his company within 60 days and promised his employee a bonus of 60 days' additional salary if the employee would remain with the company until the division was sold, such 60-day "pay bonus" was a wage, as defined in this section; thus, employer's refusal to pay such bonus subjected the employer to treble damages under former law. Neal v. Idaho Forest Indus., Inc., 107 Idaho 681, 691 P.2d 1296 \(Ct. App. 1984\).

In action for breach of employment contract, it was error for the trial judge to treat the cash value of the life insurance policy as wages, where the proceeds of the policy were to be paid to the employee at retirement or to his heirs upon his death. The policy was a fixed benefit of employment status, and as such, it was not compensation earned in increments as services were performed, unlike wages, and also unlike compensation paid in direct consideration of services rendered, in amounts over and above an employee's regular paychecks. Whitlock v. Haney Seed Co., 114 Idaho 628, 759 P.2d 919 \(Ct. App. 1988\).

Funds held in a deferral account were "wages" under this section, where the funds were compensation earned in increments as services were performed and the funds were fully earned by the employee when placed in the account, and the fact that there was or could be a balance in the account when the employee terminated his employment did not mean the account was intended as a retirement or similar post-employment benefit. Bilow v. Preco, Inc., 132 Idaho 23, 966 P.2d 23 \(1998\).

District court properly affirmed an arbitration panel's refusal to award treble damages and attorney fees on an employee's employment agreement claim because the panel did not rule that the amount owed on the employment agreement claim constituted monies owed for unpaid wages. The arbitrators awarded the employee damages under the heading of "Wage Claim," but the mere use of that shorthand term did not suggest the panel intended the award to represent wages; instead, those damages were part of a liquidated damages provision as articulated in the employment agreement. Moore v. Omnicare, Inc., 141 Idaho 809, 118 P.3d 141 \(2005\).

In a wrongful discharge case in which an employee claimed he was fired for petitioning to exercise stock options granted to him by the employer, the United States court of appeals for the Ninth Circuit requested the Idaho supreme court to accept certification of a question asking whether stock options can be wages under this section. Paolini v. Albertson's Inc., 418 F.3d 1023 \(9th Cir. 2005\).

Stock options do not fall under the definition of wages because that form of compensation is not payable in cash, with a check, or by deposit into an employee's bank account. Paolini v. Albertson's, Inc., 143 Idaho 547, 149 P.3d 822 \(2006\).

District court erred in ruling that the amount owed under a noncompetition/nondisclosure agreement was not wages under subsection (7), where the 12 months' pay provided for in the agreement was not conditioned on compliance with the noncompetition conditions, but was severance pay intended to compensate for past service and to secure economic well-being. § 45-606. Payment of wages upon separation from employment

(1) Upon layoff, or upon termination of employment by either the employer or employee, the employer shall pay or make available at the usual place of payment all wages then due the employee by the earlier of the next regularly scheduled payday or within ten (10) days of such layoff or termination, weekends and holidays excluded. Former section set forth two separate situations where recovery is allowed. Under the first alternative, wages or salary are due an employee at the time the employer discharges or lays off that employee. In the second alternative, the employee need not be discharged or laid off by their employer. CONSTITUTIONALITY.

Former similar law was legitimate exercise of police power of state, and was not an infringement upon the liberty of contract in respect to labor, and did not deprive employer or employee of the liberty or right to enter into any contract, nor take property from employer without due process of law, nor single out any particular class of debtors or individuals, and was not unconstitutional as being in contravention of Art. CONSTRUCTION.

It was not the intention of legislature to penalize employer for failing to pay an unjust debt, nor for failure to pay when discharged laborer, after demanding payment, prevents compliance with demand by his own conduct, nor to deny or preclude right of employer to interpose any valid counterclaim or defense to claim of such laborer. Olson v. Idora Hill Mining Co., 28 Idaho 504, 155 P. 291 \(1916\); Goodell v. Pope-Shenon Mining Co., 36 Idaho 427, 212 P. 342 \(1922\).

It was the purpose of former similar law to impose penalty upon employer in case of his failure to pay employee wages earned when due, after proper demand has been made therefor. [Robinson v. EFFECT OF TENDER.

EXCLUSIVITY OF REMEDIES.

Under the wage and hour law, an employee whose wages are not fully paid upon termination is entitled to alternative remedies; one remedy is to recover damages for a 30-day period after the date of termination from employment, and the other remedy is to recover, as damages, treble the amount of wages found due and owing -- these remedies, however, are mutually exclusive. PAYMENT BY CHECK.

PENALTY DENIED IN TRIAL COURT.

Where plaintiff brings an action seeking to recover wages and penalty for nonpayment, and the trial court holds against him with respect to the penalty for such nonpayment, and defendant appeals, the Supreme Court will not reverse the ruling of the court on denial of the penalty. PENALTY NOT DEPENDENT ON LIEN.

Where plaintiff sought to enforce farm laborer's lien and also to hold owner liable for penalty under former similar law, personal judgment against defendant could be entered, although proof of lien failed. Backman v. Douglas, 46 Idaho 671, 270 P. 618 \(1928\).

POINT AT WHICH WAGES BECOME DUE.

It would be unreasonable to conclude an employee's wages do not become due until after he has completed the employer's grievance proceedings. Such an interpretation of former section would compromise the purpose of the Idaho wage claim statutes -- to compensate terminated employees as soon as possible. Kalac v. Canyon County, 119 Idaho 650, 809 P.2d 511 \(Ct. App. 1990\).

RATIONAL RELATION TO STATE'S INTEREST.

The penalty provisions of the wage and hour law are rationally related to the state's overall interest in protecting wage earners. De Witt v. Medley, 117 Idaho 744, 791 P.2d 1323 \(Ct. App. 1990\).

TRIAL DE NOVO.

Where plaintiff sued defendants in probate court for wages, attorney fees, and penalty based on joint liability of defendants as partners, but recovered judgment against one defendant only, and plaintiff appealed to district court the whole case was before the district court for a trial [de novo. *Davis v. (a) Upon the discharge of any laborer or other employee of any kind whatever, it shall be the duty of the person employing such laborer or other employee to pay the amount then due under the terms of employment, whether the employment is by the hour, day, week, or month, on or before the next regular payday or no later than fifteen days following the date of discharge, whichever occurs first.

(b) Upon the resignation of any laborer or other employee of any kind whatever, it shall be the duty of the person employing such laborer or other employee to pay the amount then due under the terms of employment, whether the employment is by the hour, day, week, or month, on or before the next regular payday for the pay cycle during which the employee was working at the time of separation or no later than fifteen days following the date of resignation, whichever occurs first.

(3) The provisions of this Subsection shall not apply when there is a collective bargaining agreement between the employer and the laborer or other employee which provides otherwise.

B. In the event of a dispute as to the amount due under this Section, the employer shall pay the undisputed portion of the amount due as provided for in Subsection A of this Section. The employee shall have the right to file an action to enforce such a wage claim and proceed pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Article 2592.

C. With respect to interstate common carriers by rail, a legal holiday shall not be considered in computing the fifteen-day period provided for in Subsection A of this Section.

(a) The laborer or other employee is deemed eligible for and has accrued the right to take vacation time with pay.

(b) The laborer or other employee has not taken or been compensated for the vacation time as of the date of the discharge or resignation.

(2) The provisions of this Subsection shall not be interpreted to allow the forfeiture of any vacation pay actually earned by an employee pursuant to the employer's policy.

[2017 c 2 § 9 (Initiative Measure No. 1433, approved November 8, 2016); 1961 ex.s. c 18 § 4; 1959 c 294 § 12.]

NOTES:

Intent—Effective date—2017 c 2 (Initiative Measure No. 1433): See notes following RCW 49.46.005.

APPENDIX K

RCW 49.48.010Payment of wages due to employee ceasing work to be at end of pay period —Exceptions—Authorized deductions or withholdings.

When any employee shall cease to work for an employer, whether by discharge or by voluntary withdrawal, the wages due him or her on account of his or her employment shall be paid to him or her at the end of the established pay period: PROVIDED, HOWEVER, That this paragraph shall not apply when workers are engaged in an employment that normally involves working for several employers in the same industry interchangeably, and the several employers or some of them cooperate to establish a plan for the weekly payment of wages at a central place or places and in accordance with a unified schedule of paydays providing for at least one payday each week; but this subsection shall not apply to any such plan until ten days after notice of their intention to set up such a plan shall have been given to the director of labor and industries by the employers who cooperate to establish the plan; and having once been established, no such plan can be abandoned except after notice of their intention to abandon such plan has been given to the director of labor and industries by the employers intending to abandon the plan: PROVIDED FURTHER, That the duty to pay an employee forthwith shall not apply if the labor-management agreement under which the employee has been employed provides otherwise.

It shall be unlawful for any employer to withhold or divert any portion of an employee's wages unless the deduction is:

- (1) Required by state or federal law; or
- (2) Specifically agreed upon orally or in writing by the employee and employer; or
- (3) For medical, surgical, or hospital care or service, pursuant to any rule or regulation:

PROVIDED, HOWEVER, That the deduction is openly, clearly, and in due course recorded in the employer's books and records.

Paragraph *three of this section shall not be construed to affect the right of any employer or former employer to sue upon or collect any debt owed to said employer or former employer by his or her employees or former employees.

[2010 c 8 § 12047; 1971 ex.s. c 55 § 1; 1947 c 181 § 1; 1905 c 112 § 1; 1888 c 128 § 1; Rem. Supp. 1947 § 7594.]

NOTES:

Reviser's note: The reference to paragraph three of this section appears to be erroneous. An amendment to Engrossed Senate Bill No. 137 [1971 ex.s. c 55] deleted the first paragraph of the section without making a corresponding change in the reference to "paragraph three." It was apparently intended that the phrase "paragraph three of this section" refer to the paragraph beginning "It shall be unlawful . . .," which now appears as the second paragraph of the section.

Saving—1888 c 128: "This act is not to be construed as affecting any bona fide contract heretofore entered into contrary to its provisions and existing at the date of the passage hereof, and continuing by reason of limitation of said contract being still in force." [1888 c 128 § 4; no RRS.]

Effective date—1888 c 128: "This act is to take effect on and after its approval." [1888 c 128 § 5; no RRS.]

General repealer—1888 c 128: "All laws or parts of laws in conflict with this act be and the same are hereby repealed." [1888 c 128 § 6; no RRS.]

The foregoing annotations apply to RCW 49.48.010 through 49.48.030.

APPENDIX L

RCW 49.52.050Rebates of wages—False records—Penalty.

- (1) Shall collect or receive from any employee a rebate of any part of wages theretofore paid by such employer to such employee; or

 - (4) Being an employer or a person charged with the duty of keeping any employer's books or records shall wilfully fail or cause another to fail to show openly and clearly in due course in such employer's books and records any rebate of or deduction from any employee's wages; or

[2010 c 8 § 12055; 1941 c 72 § 1; 1939 c 195 § 1; Rem. Supp. 1941 § 7612-21.]

NOTES:

Severability—1939 c 195: "If any section, subsection, sentence or clause of this act shall be adjudged unconstitutional, such adjudication shall not affect the validity of the act as a whole or of any section, subsection, sentence or clause thereof not adjudged unconstitutional." [1939 c 195 § 5; RRS § 7612-25.] This applies to RCW 49.52.050 through 49.52.080.

Services performed by an individual for an employer shall be deemed to be employment, unless it is shown that (a) such individual has been and will continue to be free from control or direction over the performance of such services, both under his or her contract of service and in fact, (b) such service is either outside the usual course of business for which such service is performed or such service is performed outside of all the places of business of the enterprise for which such service is performed, and (c) such individual is customarily engaged in an independently established trade, occupation, profession, or business. This subdivision is not intended to be a codification of the common law and shall be considered complete as written;
- (2) Employer means the state or any individual, partnership, limited liability company, association, joint-stock company, trust, corporation, political subdivision, or personal representative of the estate of a deceased individual, or the receiver, trustee, or successor thereof, within or without the state, employing any person within the state as an employee;
- (3) Federally insured financial institution means a state or nationally chartered bank or a state or federally chartered savings and loan association, savings bank, or credit union whose deposits are insured by an agency of the United States Government;
- (4) Fringe benefits includes sick and vacation leave plans, disability income protection plans, retirement, pension, or profit-sharing plans, health and accident benefit plans, and any other employee benefit plans or benefit programs regardless of whether the employee participates in such plans or programs;
- (5) Payroll debit card means a stored-value card issued by or on behalf of a federally insured financial institution that provides an employee with immediate access for withdrawal or transfer of his or her wages through a network of automatic teller machines. Paid leave, other than earned but unused vacation leave, provided as a fringe benefit by the employer shall not be included in the wages due and payable at the time of separation, unless the employer and the employee or the employer and the collective-bargaining representative have specifically agreed otherwise. Unless the employer and employee have specifically agreed otherwise through a contract effective at the commencement of employment or at least ninety days prior to separation, whichever is later, wages includes commissions on all orders delivered and all orders on file with the employer at the time of separation of employment less any orders returned or canceled at the time suit is filed.
