Subject: Comment on Legal Technician Rule

To whom it may concern:

I am writing to object to the Legal Technician Rule.

I cannot for see any way that a person could properly advise a client without having attended and graduated from law school and passed the bar. In fact, after fourteen years of practice I find that I continue to improve skills every year and now understand how much more needed to be learned after passing the bar.

My question to the Supreme Court is; if I look back on my work right after passing the bar and feel that it could have been better how could a person with far less formal education provide quality service?

Allowing a Legal Technician rule is poorly reasoned and I strongly object. The public deserves to know that they are receiving competent legal services.

Best wishes,
