

Faulk, Camilla

From: Michael Kaiser [kais1269@gmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, November 16, 2011 6:40 PM
To: Faulk, Camilla
Subject: Comment to GR 12.4

With regard to GR 12.4, I can see the slime has risen up in its most full glory.

First of all, how in the world any situation but the incredibly incestuous situation that flourishes in the legal community, with a community that essentially answers to no one but itself--and thus answers to no one, could go forward with an entity, the WSBA, that conveniently calls itself non-public when it serves its purposes but that is anything but non-public, in that it is under the direction of the judiciary and licenses, sanctions, makes rules affecting the public, etc., is only testament to the sliminess that has come to define the Washington legal establishment.

Furthermore, this proposal, essentially stating that bar records are public and then proceeding to state that just about everything is off limits including the lint on the floor, is a farce on its face. And I fully expect--in complete keeping with the slime that is the Washington state legal establishment, for it to proceed unchecked through said establishment.

Got the guts to publish this?

Michael Kaiser, JD.

--

Yours Very Truly,

Michael Kaiser
(206) 427-4858