Subject: Comment re Proposed Amendment to CrR 2.3

I suggest the words "facsimile machine document" in the third sentence of (c) and "facsimile" in the fourth sentence, be replaced with "fax." Everyone knows what a fax is. I have never heard anyone use the term "facsimile machine document." In the fourth sentence the proposal uses the term "facsimile," thus confirming that, at a minimum, the words "machine document" are unnecessary.

Likewise, I suggest the words "electronically mailed document" and "electronic mail" be replaced with "email." Again, everyone knows what that term means.

A shorter rule is better than a longer rule.
