A. ARGUMENT

1. The admission of testimonial statements of a nontestifying witness violated Mr. Lester's Sixth Amendment right to confrontation and violated the rules of evidence.

Over Joseph Lester's objection, the trial court allowed a witness to testify Keisha Lewis claimed that when she had previously stabbed she was acting in self-defense. RP 85, 220. The court concluded the statement was admissible under ER 804 as a statement against Ms. Lewis's penal interest. RP 85. Again over Mr. Lester's objection, the court also allowed Ms. Barnes to testify that a few days prior to her death, Ms. Lewis claimed to be afraid of Mr. Lester. RP 75-76, 185.

ER 804(b) provides in part:

The following are not excluded by the hearsay rule if the declarant is unavailable as a witness:

(3) . . . A statement which was at the time of its making so far contrary to the declarant's pecuniary or proprietary interest, or so far tended to subject the declarant to civil or criminal liability, or to render invalid a claim by the declarant against another, that a reasonable person in the declarant's position would not have made the statement unless the person believed it to be true. In a criminal case, a statement tending to expose the declarant to criminal liability is not admissible unless corroborating circumstances clearly indicate the trustworthiness of the statement

(Emphasis added.)

Mr. Lester has argued Ms. Lewis's statement was exculpatory and that the State failed to offer any corroboration of its trustworthiness. The State's brief does not address this argument in any way. Thus, the State has not identified any corroborating circumstances which clearly indicate the trustworthiness of Ms. Lewis's statement. The State does not address cases which hold that statements which seek to minimize the declarant's liability are not truly against the declarant's penal interest. State v. St. Pierre, 111 Wn.2d 105, 116, 759 P.2d 383 (1988).

A statement conceding a minor role to declarant and attributing to another the major responsibility resembles more an attempt to foist blame on the other while minimizing the declarant's responsibility, and thus the statement as a whole advances far more than it impairs the interest of the declarant . . . .

State v. Whelchel, 115 Wn.2d 708, 719-20, 801 P.2d 948 (1990) (quoting 4 D. Louisell & C. Mueller, Federal Evidence § 489, at 1141 (1980)).

Here, as with the statements in Whelchel and St. Pierre, Ms. Lewis's claim of self-defense was plainly self-serving and made with exculpatory intent. But the State's brief does not address any of this. Ms. Lewis's exculpatory statement was not properly admitted as a statement against her penal interest.

Moreover, as set forth in Mr. Lester's initial brief, assuming the statement was actually against Ms. Lewis's penal interest it must then be testimonial. The essence of the hearsay exception is that because of the criminal penalty which can flow from them, such statements would not be made if not true. If that is the case, a reasonable person would understand that the statement was “potentially relevant to later criminal prosecution.” See State v. Mason, 160 Wn.2d 910, 918, 162 P.3d 396 (2007) cert. denied, 553 U.S. 1035 (2008). The admission of Ms. Lewis’s testimonial statements violated Mr. Lester’s right to confrontation. Bullcoming v. New Mexico, ___ U.S. ___, 131 S. Ct. 2705, 2713, 180 L. Ed. 2d 610 (2011). The court erred in admitting the statement.

2. Trial counsel’s proposal of an instruction which misstates the State’s burden of proof deprived Mr. Lester of a fair trial.

“When a defense ‘negates’ an element of the charged offense . . . due process requires the State to bear the burden of disproving the defense.” State v. Deer, 175 Wn. 2d 725, 734, 287 P.3d 539 (2012), cert. denied, 133 S. Ct. 991 (2013).

The State is foreclosed from shifting the burden of proof to the defendant . . . “when an affirmative defense does negate an element of the crime.”

Smith v. United States, ___ U.S. ___, 133 S. Ct. 714, 719, 184 L. Ed. 2d (2013) (quoting Martin v. Ohio, 480 U.S. 228, 237, 107 S. Ct. 1098, 94 L. Ed. 2d 267 (1987)).

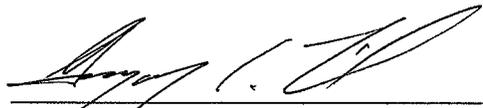

“Diminished capacity . . . negates one of the elements of the alleged crime.” State v. Nuss, 52 Wn. App. 735, 739, 763 P.2d 1249 (1988); see also State v. Gough, 52 Wn. App. 619, 622, 768 P.2d 1028 (1989) (diminished capacity differs from insanity because diminished capacity “allows a defendant to undermine a specific element of the offense”). Because it negates an element the State must disprove the defense. Deer, 175 Wn. 2d at 734; Smith, 133 S. Ct. at 719.

As argued in Mr. Lester’s opening brief, by proposing an instruction which relieved the State of its burden of proof defense counsel’s performance was deficient and prejudicial to Mr. Lester.

B. CONCLUSION

For the reasons above, and those argued previously, this Court should reverse Mr. Lester’s convictions.

Respectfully submitted this 28th day of April, 2014.
