Part II: Narrative Explanation

II. A - Brief Description Of What The Measure Does That Has Fiscal Impact on the Courts

2SSB 5755 differs from SSB 5755 by:

- adding chemical dependency to list of potential treatment while under supervision;
- moving the crime of Taking Motor Vehicle Without Permission 2 from Seriousness Level III to Seriousness Level I;
- removing language related to habitual property offenders;
- adding language limiting liability of DOC for tortious actions of a supervised offender unless reckless disregard of a known and immediate risk by the department is proven;
- clarifying that grant programs through the Dept of Commerce will be subject to appropriation, and removes appropriations made under original bill;
- removing specific appropriations to the Department of Corrections; and
- adding effective date, new sentences apply to sentences imposed for crimes committed on or after July 1, 2015.

These changes would not result in any additional judicial impact.

SSB 5755 differs from SB 5755 by:

- Adding two new sections regarding habitual property offenders. Sec. 20 provides that a prosecuting attorney may file a special allegation when sufficient evidence exists to show that the accused is a habitual property offender, and the section also defines "habitual property offender." Sec. 21 would describe the additional times that must be added to the standard sentencing range if the court finds that the offender is a habitual property offender
- Making adjustments in Sec. 7 to the new Property Offense Sentencing Grid.
- Incorporating Amendment s-1712.3, which adds four crimes to the seriousness level III: Theft of a Motor Vehicle, Possession of a Stolen Vehicle, Taking a Motor Vehicle without Permission 1 and 2.
- Removing all references to the Washington Justice Commission and provides that the Sentencing Guidelines Commission will remain in effect.
- Providing sunset provision in Sections 22 and 23 for the Sentencing Guidelines Commission and all provisions of the act, except provisions relating to habitual property offenders.
- The name of the Crime Victims' Compensation Program is corrected in Sec. 14(previously said crime victims' compensation commission).

None of these changes would have additional judicial impact.

Original Bill:

This bill addresses the property crime rate in Washington.

The bill responds to the findings of the state justice reinvestment task force by:

- Changing sentencing policy to require supervision of certain people convicted of property offenses;
- Providing treatment, if needed, and programs to reduce recidivism; and
- Providing additional support to local governments and victims of property crime.

New Section 7 would add new sentencing requirements for property offenses.

Section 8 creates a table identifying the seriousness level of property offenses. The seriousness level of the property offenses included in the new table come from the current table under RCW 9.94A.515.

Using different sentencing requirements for property offenses would not result in additional workload for the courts.

Section 13 would create the Washington justice commission and would require two superior court judges to be voting members. The chief justice of the supreme court or the chief justice's designee would be required to be an ex officio member.

Serving as a voting member of the commission would be considered part of current duties of the appointed superior court judges.
