Part III: Expenditure Detail

Part IV: Capital Budget Impact

Part II: Narrative Explanation

This bill would require the Indeterminate Sentence Review Board (ISRB) to provide certain notices and keep comprehensive meeting minutes when reviewing parole eligible offenders who committed their offenses before July 1, 1984, and early release petitions from certain offenders convicted of crimes as juveniles.

Part II.A – Brief Description of what the Measure does that has fiscal impact on the Courts

The bill would create requirements regarding reviewing and hearing cases of parole eligible offenders who committed their offenses before the enactment of the SRA, July 1, 1984, and of early release of offenders convicted of crimes as juveniles and sentenced to prison for longer than 20 years.

All records would be disclosed in full and without redaction. There would be a presumption that no records would be exempt from disclosure to the sentencing court, prosecuting attorney, and crime victim or surviving family member, in whole or in part. The ISRB would not be allowed to claim any exemption from disclosure for the records reviewed for an early release petition or parole eligibility review hearing.

II.B - Cash Receipt Impact

No cash receipt impact.

II.C – Expenditures

No expenditure impact.
