Part II: Narrative Explanation

This bill would require Washington State to recognize a child and assume jurisdiction of a case if a tribal court orders transfer of jurisdiction from tribal jurisdiction because of unforeseen circumstances.

Part II.A – Brief Description of what the Measure does that has fiscal impact on the Courts

This bill would provide that if a tribal court orders transfer of jurisdiction from the tribe, the state would be required to take jurisdiction of the case and comply with federal and state native American child welfare acts/laws.

This would not be a common occurrence, and would not create significant court impact.
