DEAR FRIENDS,

On behalf of the Minority and Justice Commission, we are pleased to share this updated directory of judicial officers that reflects the diversity of our judiciary in the State of Washington. It is an excellent resource for locating speakers, networking, and mentoring.

The Minority and Justice Commission, established by the Supreme Court of the State of Washington in 1990, was originally charged with the task of fostering and supporting a fair and bias-free system of justice. While we have not fully realized a perfect system of justice, we believe our work has helped move us in the right direction. Building a judiciary that reflects the richness of our state in all of its diversity is a significant step toward this goal.

Each judicial officer has opted to be included in this directory. By "opting in" they have agreed to serve as a resource to you, the community which we serve. They have agreed to serve as mentors, speakers and are available to share information on how to become judicial officers and the work we are called to do.

We thank the following for their tremendous work in compiling the directory:

Judge Faye R. Chess Karen Murray Frank Thomas Avery Miller Jawan Harris Kate O'Connor

Sincerely,

Justice Mary I. Yu

DISTRICT COURT JUDGE KARL WILLIAMS PIERCE COUNTY

"One experience I'll never forget is when a young black man came before me on a criminal case, shoulders slumped eyes down. When he finally looked up his demeanor changed in a way that said to me, he had hope that he might get fair treatment. That there was someone in the system that looked like him and that matter to him."
