Comments on CR 82.5

It does not appear to be a just action to look to "customs" of a tribal court. Unless procedures are written, room is left for a sad abuse by permitting a court -- any court -- to claim "custom". It may be wise to reconsider this.

Quite frankly, tribal courts were created in order to have more control by the tribes over internal affairs. This confuses these separate systems and may be ill advised. This is written with the full knowledge that one member of the Supreme Court served in the tribal system.
