As a legal assistant and paralegal, I have volunteered at the King County Bar Association's Neighborhood Legal Clinics and have witnessed first hand the overwhelming need in our community for legal assistance to undeserved communities.

With the continued economic inequality in our state, LLLT licensed professionals can help provide services to lower income people with issues such as drafting wills, fighting evictions, debt response, and unemployment claims.

Most attorneys in Seattle charge between $290 and $900. Most people cannot afford their services.
