Overview

Recognizing that effective representation of children in dependency cases by qualified and properly trained attorneys results in improved permanency and wellbeing outcomes, the Washington State Legislature recently established a right to appoint attorneys for children and youth eight years old and above in dependency cases. The new law requires full implementation of this expanded right to counsel for children and youth over the next six-state fiscal years. The Legislature assigned responsibility for the administration of the program to OCLA, an independent agency in the judicial branch of state government.

OCLA's Children's Representation Program (CRP) underwrites and oversees the delivery of standards-based, effective, equity-informed, and culturally competent attorney representation for children and youth for whom attorneys are appointed under state law. OCLA is recruiting for a visionary leader to ensure an effective transition to full implementation of the newly expanded right to counsel and continue the agency's efforts to foster a fundamental change in the dynamics of Washington State's child welfare practices that have historically and continue to cause disproportionate harms to children and youth of color, who have a range of learning and related disabilities, who are victims of multiple and compounding traumas, and who have never had a legal voice in the process.

Principal Responsibilities

The Program Manager oversees the day-to-day operation of the CRP, including the design and implementation of expanded CRP services pursuant to Chapter 210, laws of 2021 (codified at RCW 13.34.267). - Establish, maintain, and oversee systems for effective oversight and accountability of contract attorneys to equity-informed, standards-based, culturally competent representation of children in dependency and termination cases
- Cultivate relationships with state-based law schools to establish and maintain a pipeline of diverse, passionate, and well-trained new lawyers committed to effective legal representation of children in child welfare cases

- Oversee the system for receipt, approval, and payment of invoices for CRP contract attorneys
- Expand and oversee the CRP contractor training program consistent with changes in substantive law, child welfare practice, cultural competency and race equity imperatives, and other relevant considerations
- Develop strategies to foster and support a statewide community of practice among CRP contract attorneys, including coordination of systemic legal representational strategies for children and youth in dependency cases
- Develop and oversee contract attorney performance review procedures and systems
- Supervise dedicated OCLA CRP Program Counsel and staff
- Develop systems to define, track, and report on data relevant to CRP effectiveness including, but not limited to, outcomes, race equity indicators, and geographic differentials in the treatment of children and youth in dependency cases
- Upgrade and maintain OCLA's CRP website
- Serve as the primary legislative liaison between OCLA and the Washington State Legislature, the Washington State Supreme Court's Commission on Children in Foster Care, and other key stakeholders on matters relating to CRP program operations
