Signature of Respondent

The court may not modify an order that is effective for more than two years unless the respondent proves that the modification is warranted.

However, if the respondent asks the court to:

- 1) modify the order to:
 - a. make it last a shorter time period, or
 - b. remove a provision that restrains the respondent from harassing, stalking, threatening, or committing other acts of domestic violence against the petitioner or other person protected by the order;

or

- 2) terminate the order;

then the court will consider the following factors when it considers whether or not to grant or deny the motion:

Whether the respondent has:

- committed or threatened domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking, or other violent acts since the protection order was entered;
- violated the terms of the protection order, and the time that has passed since entry of the order;
- exhibited suicidal ideation or attempts since the protection order was entered;
