

SPEAKER BIOGRAPHIES

Shankar Narayan, Esq., Director of Technology and Liberty Project, ACLU of Washington

Shankar Narayan is the Technology and Liberty Project Director at the American Civil Liberties Union of Washington. Shankar works to protect constitutional rights in a legal and policy landscape that is fundamentally shifting because of game-changing advancements in technology. For the previous 8 years, Shankar was Legislative Director at the ACLU of Washington. Shankar was previously Policy Director at OneAmerica, a Seattle-based immigrant rights organization. Shankar's role at OneAmerica placed him on the frontlines of the immigrant rights struggle. Prior to that, Shankar built a practice in technology and intellectual property law at Preston Gates and Ellis (now K&L Gates). Shankar was the first chair of the City of Seattle's Immigrant and Refugee Advisory Board, and formerly co-chaired the steering committee of the Detention Watch Network. Shankar is past president of the South Asian Bar Association of Washington, a former board member of the Asian Bar Association of Washington, and co-chaired the Ethnic Diversity in the Legal Profession Committee of the King County Bar Association. Shankar was named King County Bar Association's Outstanding Young Lawyer for 2010.

RC Carter, Microsoft's Defending Democracy Program

RC Carter is Director of Special Projects for Microsoft's Defending Democracy Program. In addition to his work on election integrity, he has been focusing on innovative ways to share data across institutional boundaries while preserving the privacy of any individuals involved. In addition to work in elections, he has worked on data collaboratives in transportation and bioinformatics. RC is most happy when he is working on thorny projects with smart people, often expressed in software. He had spent the past 20 years in varying product capacities, launching Amazon's Apparel store, Gap's eCommerce and promotions engine, and a variety of other startup endeavor.

Logan Koepke, Upturn

Logan Koepke is a Senior Policy Analyst at Upturn, where he works to promote equity and justice in the design, governance, and use of digital technologies. He's the co-author of Danger Ahead: Risk Assessment and the Future of Bail Reform, Stuck in a Pattern: Early Evidence on 'predictive policing' and civil rights, and Led Astray: Online Lead Generation and Payday Loans. He's researched extensively on the use of new technologies in criminal justice and financial justice, and has years of experience working with civil rights, digital rights, and technical communities on the civil rights impact of automated predictions. Before joining Upturn, he worked at a civil rights litigation law firm, the Center on Wrongful Convictions at Northwestern Pritzker School of Law, and as a research fellow. Logan grew up in Dallas, Texas and earned his B.A. in History and Political Science at Northwestern University, where he graduated with honors and the Highest Order of Excellence distinction in 2013.

SPEAKER BIOGRAPHIES

Laura Moy, J.D., Georgetown Law's Center on Privacy and Technology

Professor Laura Moy is the Executive Director of Georgetown Law's Center on Privacy & Technology. She has written, spoken, and advocated before federal agencies and Congress on a broad range of technology policy issues, including law enforcement surveillance, consumer privacy, security research, device portability, copyright, and net neutrality. Her current work focuses on policy issues at the intersection of privacy and criminal justice. Before joining the Center, Professor Moy was Acting Director of the Communications & Technology Clinic at Georgetown Law's Institute for Public Representation. Prior to that, she was senior policy counsel at New America's Open Technology Institute. Professor Moy completed her JD at NYU School of Law and her LLM at Georgetown as part of the law school's clinical teaching fellowship program.

Solon Barocas, Ph.D.

Solon Barocas is a Researcher in the New York City lab of Microsoft Research and an Assistant Professor in the Department of Information Science at Cornell University. Solon is also a Faculty Associate at the Berkman Klein Center for Internet & Society at Harvard University. His current research explores ethical and policy issues in artificial intelligence, particularly fairness in machine learning, methods for bringing accountability to automated decision-making, and the privacy implications of inference. Solon co-founded the annual workshop on Fairness, Accountability, and Transparency in Machine Learning (FAT/ML) and later established the ACM conference on Fairness, Accountability, and Transparency (FAT*). Solon was previously a Postdoctoral Researcher at Microsoft Research, where he worked with the Fairness, Accountability, Transparency, and Ethics in AI group, as well as a Postdoctoral Research Associate at the Center for Information Technology Policy at Princeton University. Solon completed his doctorate in the Department of Media, Culture, and Communication at New York University, where he remains a Visiting Scholar at the Center for Urban Science + Progress.

David Heiner, Esq., Microsoft

David Heiner is a Strategic Policy Advisor at Microsoft Corporation. Dave focuses on the societal implications of the rapid development of computer technology, particularly artificial intelligence. For many years he served as a Vice President and Deputy General Counsel at Microsoft, with responsibility at various times for privacy, competition law, telecommunications law, accessibility law, human rights, online safety and the company's work with international standard-setting organizations. Dave was the chief antitrust lawyer for Microsoft from 1994 through 2013. He is a 1982 graduate of Cornell University, where he received a B.A. in physics, and a 1985 graduate of the University of Michigan Law School, where he served on the editorial board of the law review. Following law school, Dave clerked for the Honorable Thomas P. Griesa of the U.S. District Court in New York. Before joining Microsoft in 1994, Dave practiced law at Sullivan & Cromwell in New York.

Dave chairs the board of Probono.net, a national non-profit that leverages technology to promote access to justice for those who cannot afford a lawyer. Dave also serves on the board of the Northwest Immigrant Rights Project, volunteers with the Seattle Clemency Project, and is the executive sponsor at Microsoft for pro bono legal work.

SPEAKER BIOGRAPHIES

Elizabeth Joh, J.D., U.C. Davis School of Law

Professor Joh teaches in criminal law and procedure, constitutional law, and policing at the U.C. Davis School of Law. Her research focuses on the regulation of the police, with special emphases on undercover operations, DNA evidence collection, and new surveillance technologies. Professor Joh has been a visiting professor at Stanford Law School, and has published widely in law journals including the Stanford Law Review, the California Law Review, the Northwestern University Law Review, the Washington Law Review, and the Boston University Law Review. She received her J.D./Ph.D. (Law and Society) from New York University, and her B.A. from Yale University. After law school, Professor Joh clerked for the Honorable Stephen Reinhardt of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

